Arkansas State

Becomes University

Rockefeller Signs Bill January 17

"ASU A Reality," the headline on a special edition of The Herald jumped out at you and proclaimed the coming of a new era. Arkansas State would not officially become a university until July 1, but the battle had been won. Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller signed the bill on a snowy Tuesday afternoon, and bedlam broke loose on the A-State campus. The final goal had been reached, and the tensions from eight years of waiting had to be released. Dr. Carl R. Reng led the way, and help came from sources too numerous to mention. The glow of university status will soon die out and ASU will become a more natural word, but the memory of the day when it became a reality will be with us for the rest of our lives.

Unusual quiet prevailed on the House floor as Rep. John Miller read excerpts from the Arkansas Traveler to the legislators.

Bill Passes House Easily

With surprising ease, the House of Representatives passed the university status bill two days after the session opened. Help from an unexpected source came in the form of editorial support from the University of Arkansas student newspaper.

Two of the main fighters for the bill were Roscoe Brown of Jonesboro (above) and Jack Oakes of Augusta (standing, at right).

Using a rather unusual attention-getter, Dr. Reng answered the opposition in the Senate committee meeting, which had been delayed several days.

U of A President Mullins did his best to sway the senators, but it was not enough—Committee voted 6-1 for ASU.

"A bill for an act to be entitled: An act to change the name of Arkansas State College to Arkansas State University; and for other purposes.

"Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Arkansas.

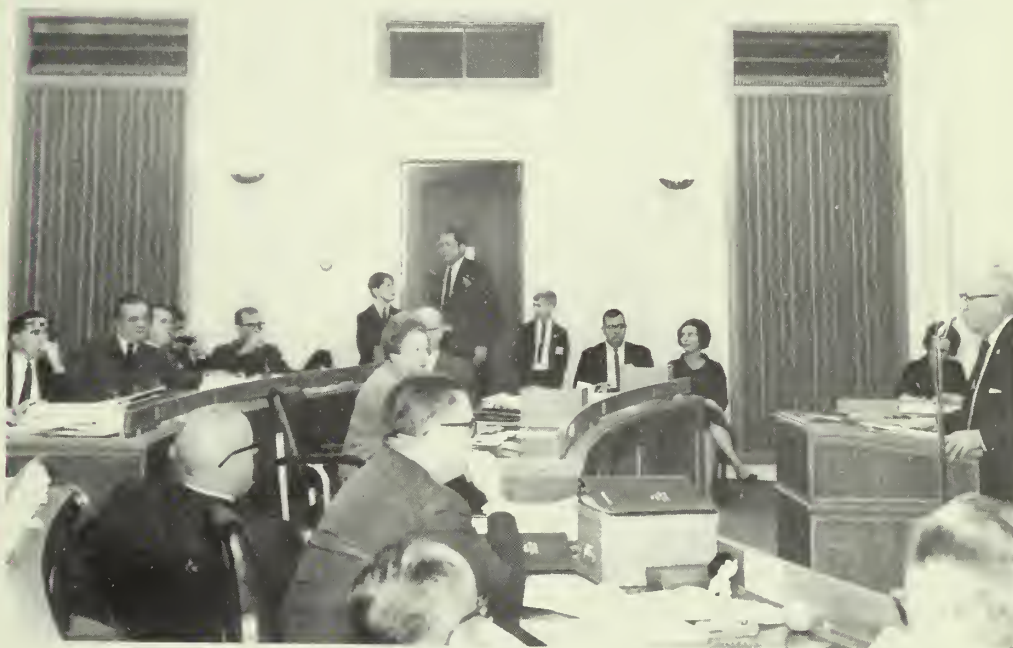

"Section 1. The name of Arkansas State College is hereby changed to Arkansas State University.

"Section 2. Hereafter, vacancies on the Board of Trustees of Arkansas State University shall be filled by appointments by the Governor from the State at large.

"Section 3. This act shall take effect and be in full force on and after July 1, 1967."

A large group of supporters from Jonesboro saw the Senate vote 29-5 in favor of ASU.

Senate Approves; WR Adds Name

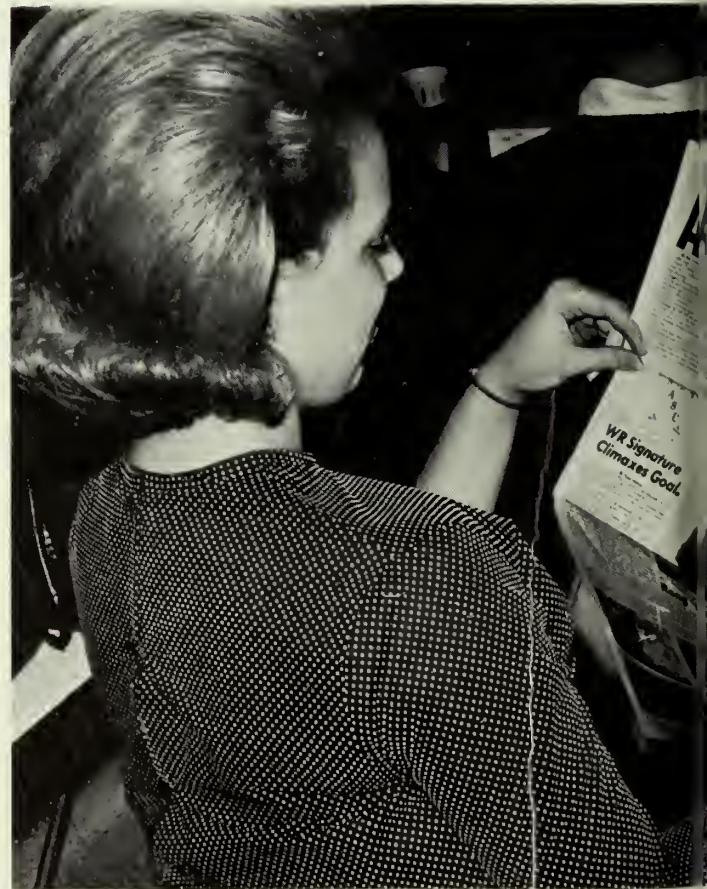

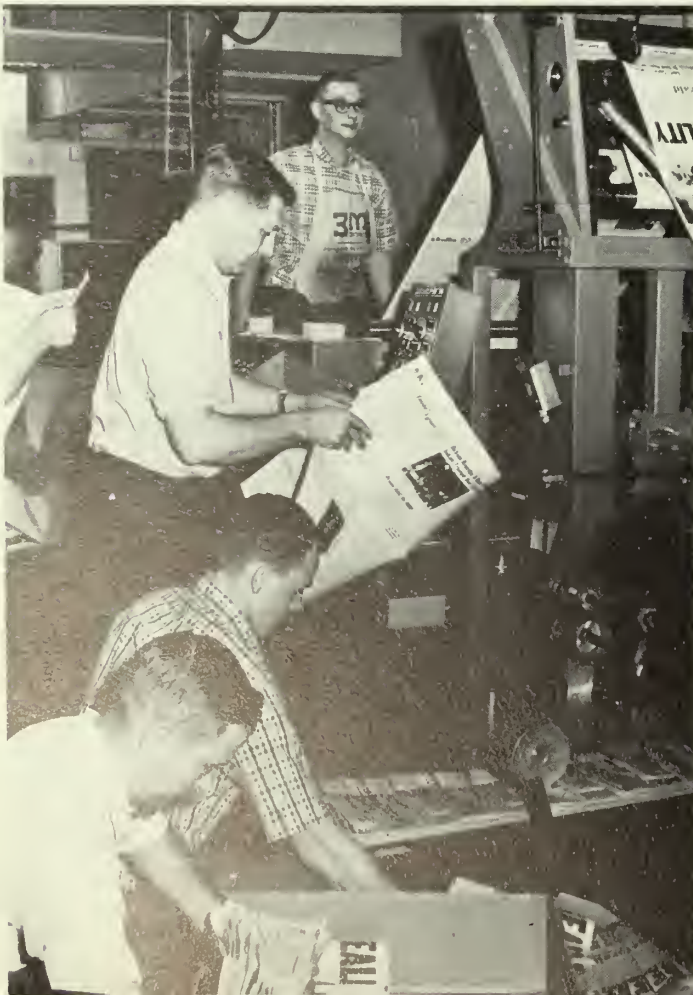

Dr. Reng Triumphant

Dr. Reng and other A-State administrators who had worked hard and long for university status were elated. . . and relieved. They had a right to be proud of the work they had done, and they had a right to celebrate. So did the students. Despite the snow, people all over campus displayed their joy when word reached A-State. For some, though, the celebrating had to be delayed. A special edition of The Herald was planned, and less than 12 hours after the governor had signed the bill, the edition was printed.

Special Issue Of Herald Tells Story

A mad rush was made as pictures and stories were thrown together, then turned over to the printers. The next morning, students had the results.

Wigwam was filled with warmth-seekers as upperclassmen especially grabbed cigars and carried signs of new-found joy.

Snow flurries didn't stop the celebration as students too became newsmakers for a day. Shouts of "ASU" could be heard all over the new university campus.

SGA President Ray Hall Jr. presented Dr. Reng with a plaque in recognition of his efforts.

'ASU Day' Starts With Assembly

Before he began a brief speech, the university president was greeted with a standing ovation by the students.

Parade Follows Through Jonesboro

Following the semester break, classes were dismissed for a day, and an official celebration was held. It started with an assembly and was followed by a parade through downtown Jonesboro. All facilities in the Reng Center were opened free of charge to students, and a dance was held that night.

Probably the longest parade in A-State history began in front of Kays Hall. It was so long, in fact, that it was a half-hour late starting.

Everyone got into the parade, from members of the Board of Trustees to the Indian family. Students painted and decorated cars, then piled into them.

Parade was so long that tail-enders got downtown too late to join in the ceremonies.

'Challenge Lies Ahead Of Us'

"We must look to the future and plan for it," Dr. Reng reminded the students of Arkansas State University. "We face a tremendous responsibility now." The bands played, the cheers were heard, the shouts echoed all over campus with a reminder that the celebration could not last long.

Jonesboro citizens helped with the celebrating, showing their pride in the state's second university.

Smiling face showed the ASU president's joy in taking part in the celebration.

Cheerleaders introduced some new cheers, showed they could spell their school's new name.

Onlookers at Kays Hall watch parade, wishing they had cars.

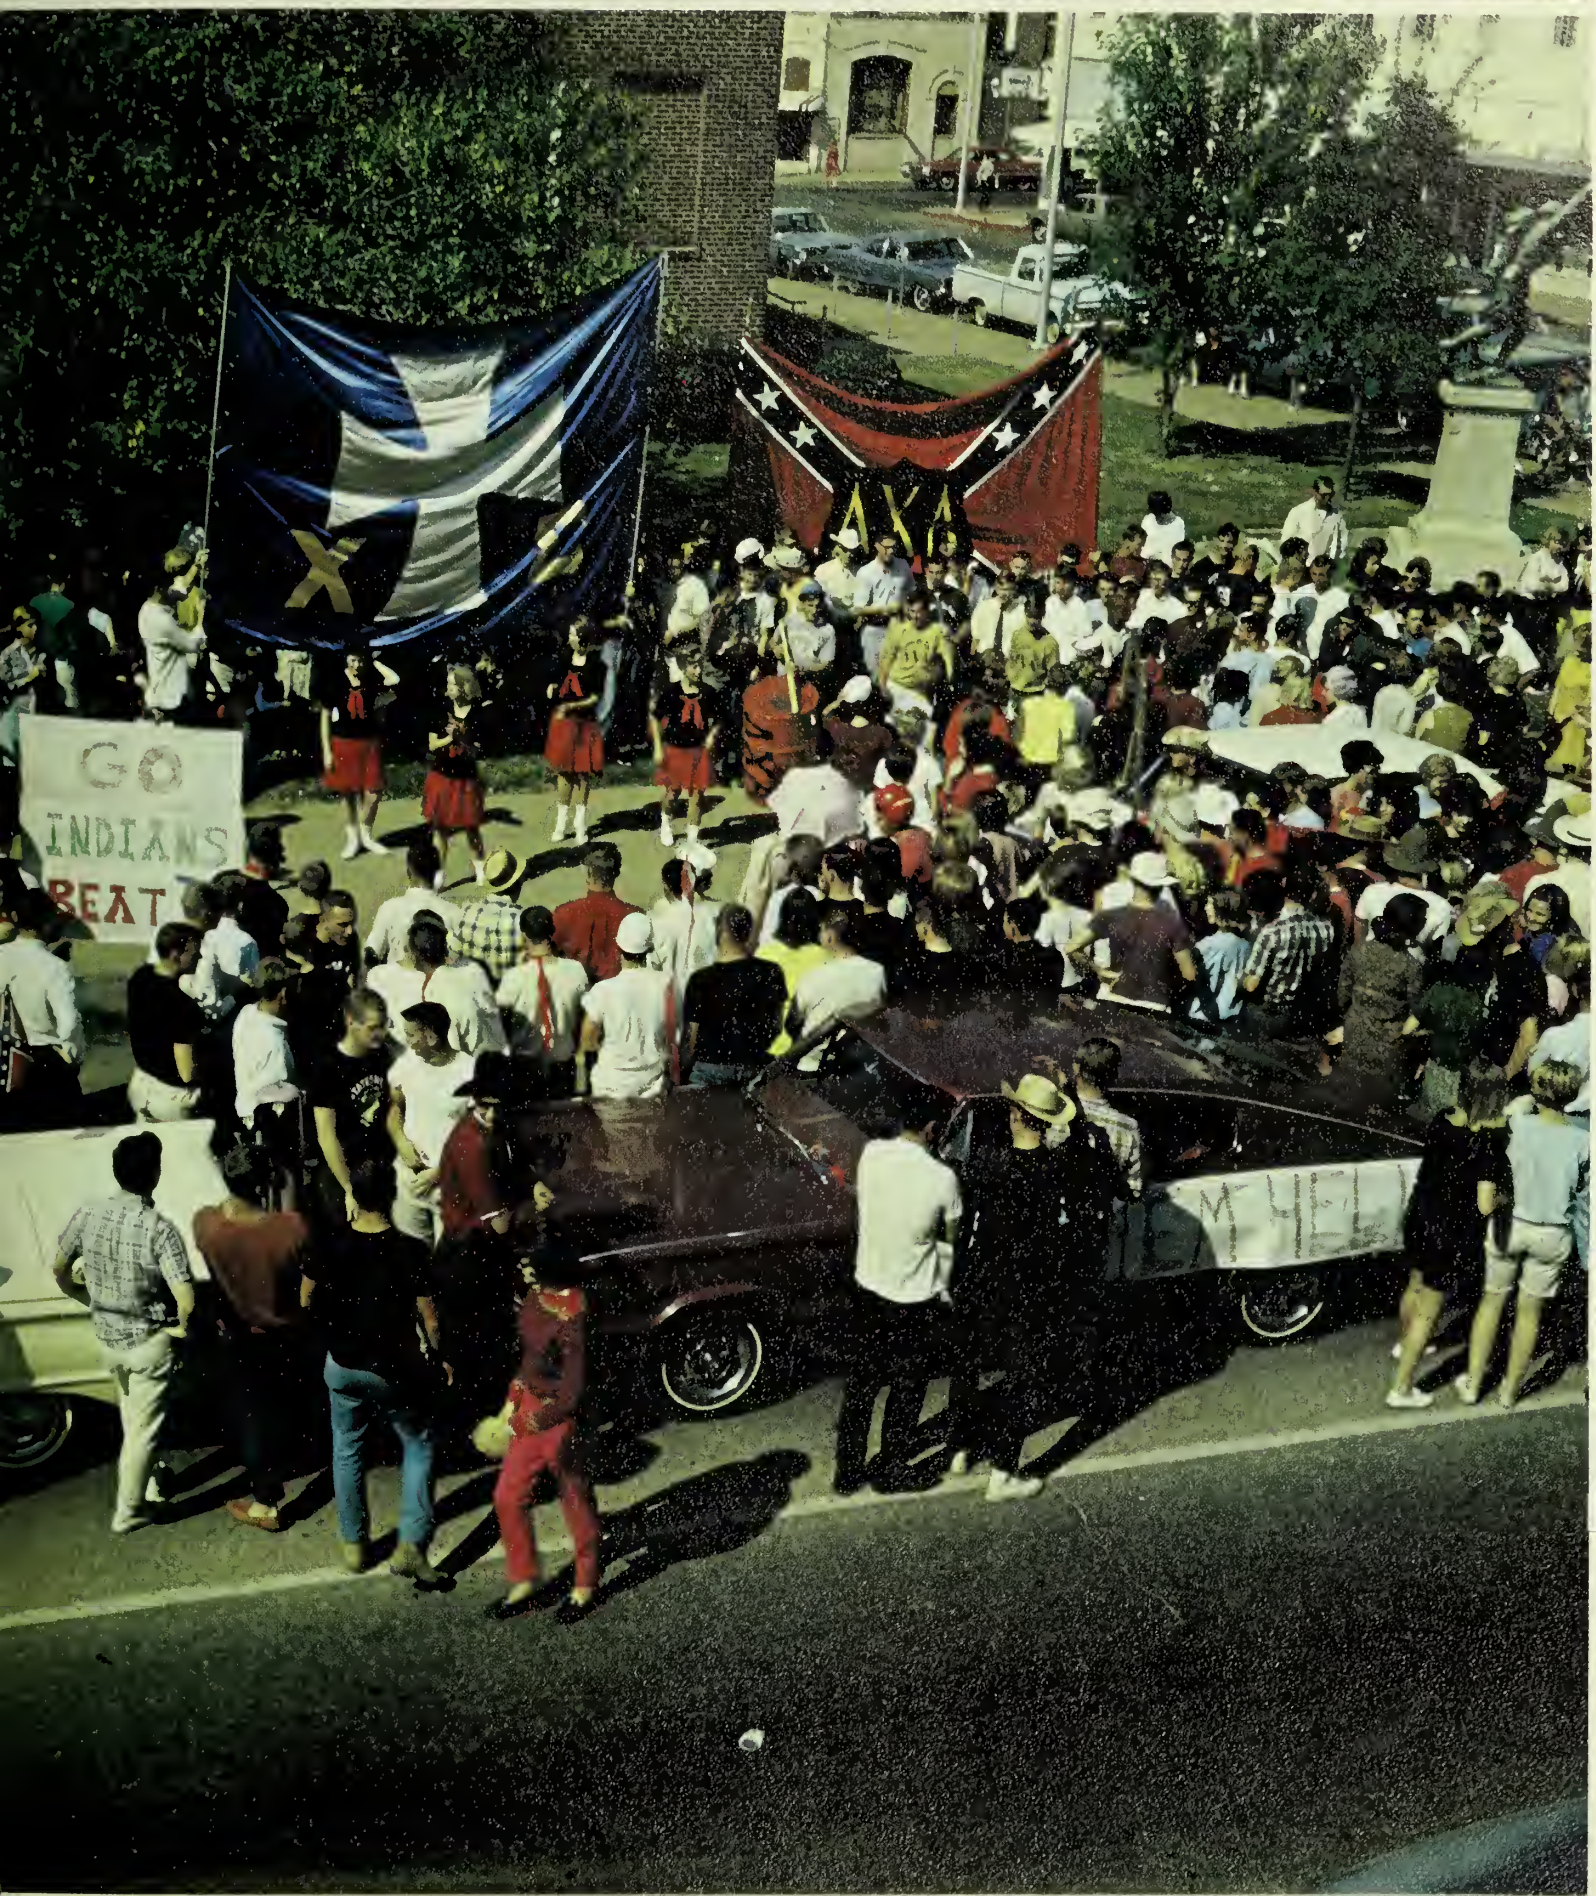

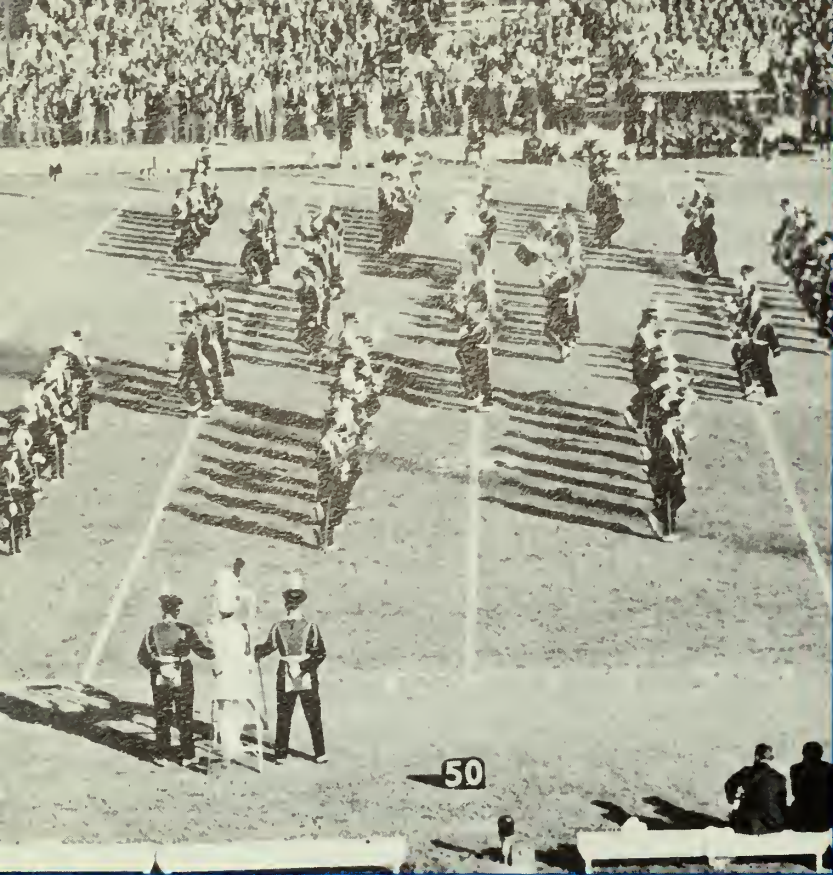

Dance floor was crowded that night as were Reng Center facilities. Only trouble was that it was so crowded that you couldn't really ever get to anything free.

Student Body (?) Picks Queen

Valenteen Triumphs Over Four Others

All important events have to have queens to reign over them. Most of these queens have at least one thing in common—beauty. Arkansas State's Homecoming Queen was no exception last fall. Lynn Valenteen was beautiful, talented, popular, intelligent and, what's more, a member of the Indian staff. However, many students were disgruntled, to say the least, about the method of selection set up by the SGA. The judges were poorly instructed for their interviews prior to picking five finalists. As a result, they may have given too much consideration to intelligence. Many candidates were eliminated on their lack of political insight, current events knowledge or literary awareness. Less than one-fifth of the student body voted. Good for the Greeks.

Girls are nervous before the interviews. Little did they realize that they should have been studying

Some students were corraled. Some were rustled. Some were found hiding. Others were trapped in class. But they voted, and they were counted.

Oral persuasion is part of the game, and all five finalists get in the act at the same time.

Five finalists' pictures were posted on the bulletin board in the Reng Center. Unfortunately all students do not see bulletin board.

Lovely JoAnne faces the firing squad alone. Lovely JoAnne forgot her world map. Lovely JoAnne didn't remember where Tasmania was. Shame on lovely JoAnne. She is zilched.

Bustle of activity continues until late in the night as groups scramble to finish their displays.

Stuffing paper napkins all week makes it rough on holding hands when the weekend arrives.

"Rembrandt" and friends put the brushes to an Indian head for Lambda Chi's third place entry. Ominously, the Indian toppled.

Supervisors are always plentiful at display sites.

TKE's "Teach the Cardinals a New Tune" was judged best in the mechanical division, and Chi O's "The Only Good Redbird is a Dead Bird" won stationary-with-lights.

"Salt 'em Down" was the theme of the PEMM Club display, which took first in the stationary-without-lights judging.

Display Competition Stiff

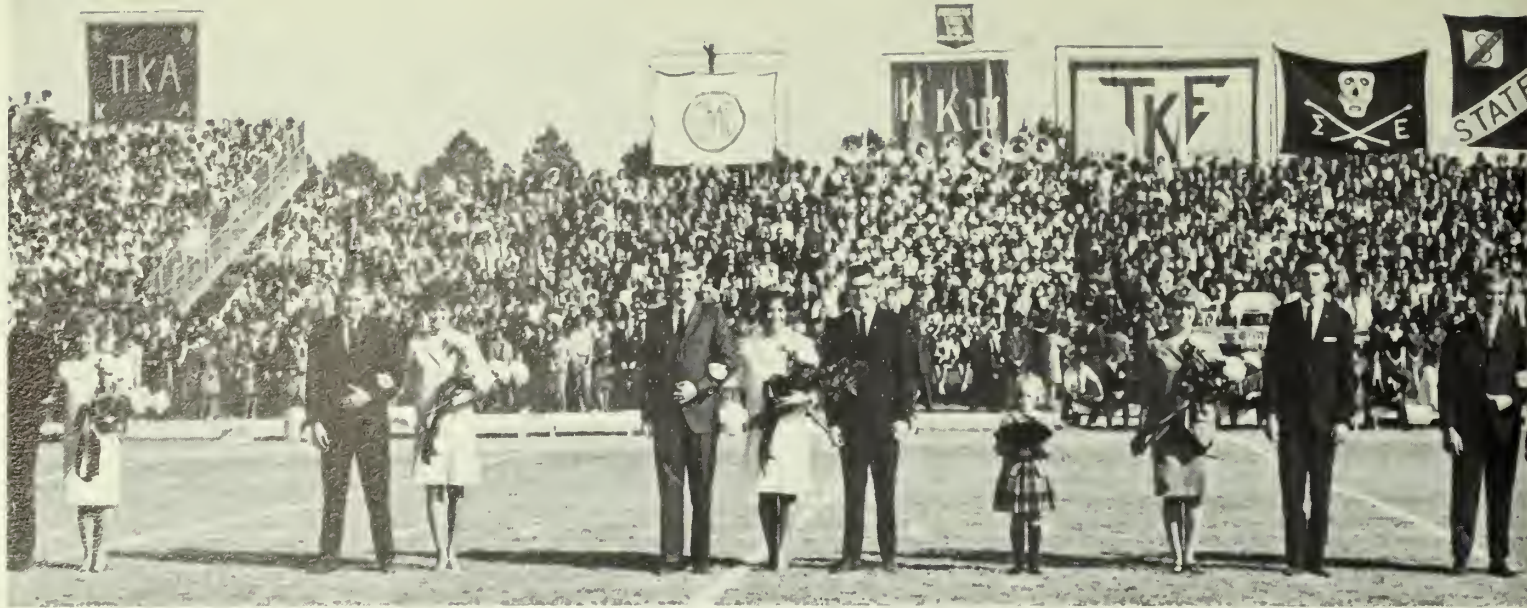

TKE, Chi O, PEMM Club
Capture Top Honors

Homecoming display competition in all three divisions was rougher than ever before. The various organizations built them bigger than ever before and probably spent more money. First, second and third place winners in each category were: mechanical—Tau Kappa Epsilon, Sigma Phi Epsilon, Lambda Chi Alpha; stationary-with-lights—Chi Omega, Alpha Gamma Delta, Alpha Omicron Pi; stationary-without-lights—PEMM Club (no second or third given). Next year construction companies may be contracted.

Alpha Gamma Delta copped second in the stationary-with-lights division, and Sigma Phi Epsilon was runnerup in mechanical.

Homecoming royalty and their escorts are presented before the game. Get back on the right side, Bill.

The stage was set for a big day. The displays were built; the queen was ready to reign; spirit was running high. And best of all, the Indians were unbeaten and nationally-ranked, hopefully on their way to the conference championship. Then along came Lamar Tech. The Cardinals must not have appreciated the display slogans. Indians said: Just wait til next year.

Constant practice is required for a feature twirler to maintain maximum poise and control.

A pep meeting at A-State would be sadly lacking without the music and antics of the Indian pep band.

Practice, Practice And More Practice. . .

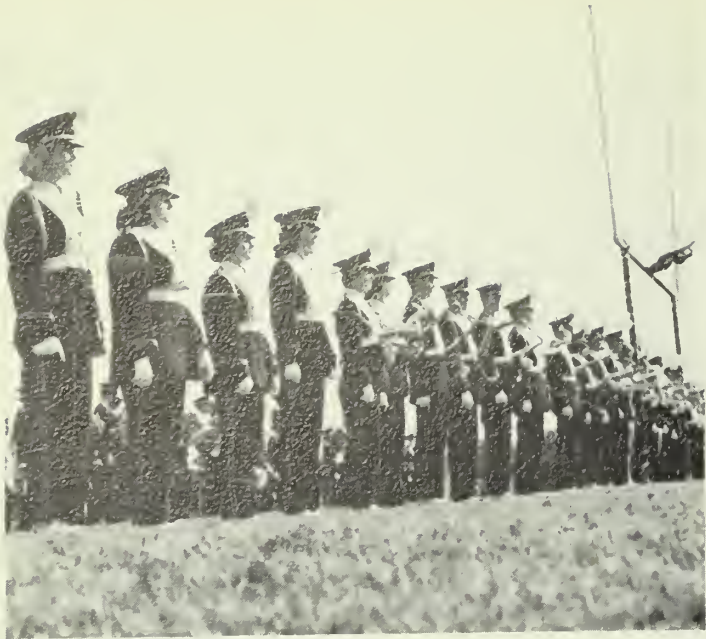

All too often, we look at the finished product and in our haste fail to consider the hours of mental and physical effort that have gone before. A-State's Marching Indian Band is held in high esteem by all who have seen and heard it perform. Here, too, one sees the finished product. Seldom does one realize the individual sacrifices that have been made in order to make the band better. Members of the band returned to school one week prior to formal registration to begin practice. During that week they practiced eight hours a day. Six of that eight were spent out in the hot September sun marching and learning new routines. The two remaining hours were devoted solely to instrumental and group sectional practices. After school began, one and a half hours daily were spent in practice. Subsequently, the band was better than ever. They presented a thrilling new show each game to the delight of all present. Practice, practice and more practice. . . and the word is perfection.

A farewell grin from Don Minx, one of the South's foremost directors, and the Indian band is off.

"I'll have you know peanut butter and jelly sandwiches made me what I am today."

Everyone is at attention, all is in readiness, the whistle tweets, . . . GO!

. . .And The Word Is Perfection

The Indian Band marches on and wherever it goes, the quality of its performance has brought the name of Arkansas State to fore. This year band director Don Minx was assisted by Tom Williams, new to the A-State campus. Always a crowd pleaser, John Erwin, drum major, donned a Batman cape and mask to accent one of the band's more colorful shows. Leading the majorette line this year in its many clever routines was Carol Rand, head majorette. Taking over an honor bestowed in years gone by to the state's other university, the Marching Indians were the lead band in the Arkansas Livestock Exposition Parade. A trip to Murray State to perform at halftime, a concert at the Mid-South Fair and the Jonesboro Christmas Parade were also a part of its schedule. Most assuredly, the A-State band holds a ranking among the elite of its kind in the nation.

Candidates of the two parties congregate to prepare for the coming week of campaigning and elections.

URP and its cowboy hats get out the votes with pretty girls.

Every spring when Student Government election comes around, the campus shows more life in this one week than at any other time. Last spring two active parties, the Progressive Student Party and the University Reform Party, each composed of several organizations, all but two of which are Greek, presented their slate of candidates and party platforms. The campaigning, entertainment and propaganda in attempts to sway the voters had vivid effects as over 2,000 students went to the polls—impressively breaking a school record. The night before voting day each party held a dance, but a deluge of rain dampened spirits considerably. A campus forum to interrogate the candidates, rallies and platform brochures handed out to the students resulted in an informed, interested voting body. The final results gave PSP candidates 20 positions out of 27 possible. Five members of URP gained victories, and two independents were elected. All in all, a bundle of money was spent, mainly by the Greeks, to control the SGA, a goal questionable in value.

When the student leaders of Arkansas State get together, anything is liable to happen. Each year the administration invites those students to a retreat at Walcott State Park. During this time discussions are held concerning campus problems and issues of the coming school year. Members of the faculty and administration meet with the students. Among the more prominent issues which came up last year were university status, censorship and staff selection of publications, women's dress, independent student activities, Greek relations and Student Government Association programs. Fortunately, or in some cases unfortunately, almost all A-State traditions survived. After the retreat was over, the leaders paid tribute to Dean Moore by throwing him in the lake.

Between conference sessions the students were given a chance to let off some steam.

SGA President went home early because of cold weather, so students decided Dean Moore needed a bath; afterward they turned on each other and tested the Walcott facilities themselves.

Graduation-Recollection Plus Anticipation

At each of Arkansas State's three commencements during the year its directory of alumni grows. These graduates had many reasons for attending college. Perhaps the one best reason was provided by Aristotle when he said that only the educated are free. This challenge of a higher education is not reserved for a select few. All ages can seek freedom of the mind through pursuit of knowledge. Students fresh out of high school as well as retired military men can be found in the undergraduate school. Working on master's degrees are college graduates who want better salaries or a teacher who wants to be a better one. Education shapes the individuals who shape the future. All these thoughts run through the graduate's mind commencement night. The challenges are echoed by the speaker. Soon, with his left hand he will receive his diploma, a key to the future, and with his right hand a friendly handshake signifying education's pride in him.

Capturing top honors in the fraternity division, Lambda Chi Alpha shared the spotlight with Alpha Omicron Pi, winners of the sorority division, last spring in LXA's "Little 500" pushcart race. Sigma Phi Epsilon took second in the fraternity competition, while Chi Omega was runnerup among the sororities. The Chi O's also pedaled their way to victory over Phi Mu in the "Tricycle Grand Prix." It was the second straight year that Lambda Chi had won its own event. The winning cart covered the 200-yard course in 42.7 seconds in the finals, topping the Sig Eps by two seconds.

Girls had their fun, too, despite the fact the times were not quite as good as those in the fraternity division.

Mud-drenched Chi O's don't seem to mind their predicament since they have a shiny new trophy to show for their endeavors.

Mud-caked sorority girls were hardly recognizable at the second annual Pi Kappa Alpha Little Olympics, but the boys rated the event high on their list of spectator sports. Tossing their lady-like mannerisms to the winds, the girls competed in such events at the pie throw, tug-o-war, find-the-change and sack race. Also a crowd favorite was the selection of a beauty queen from a field of four "smartly attired" Pike pledges to reign over the event. Capturing first place with the highest total of points was Chi Omega sorority. Second went to Alpha Gamma Delta, and Phi Mu placed third.

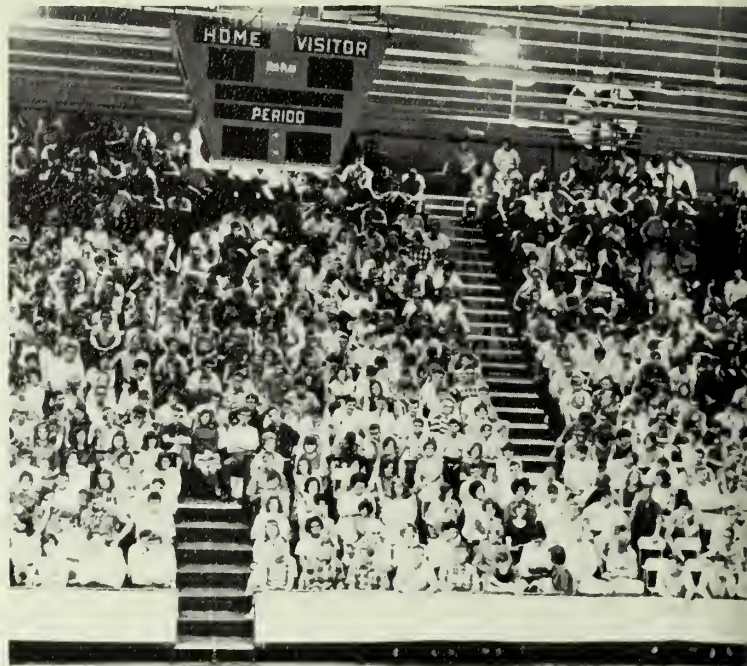

Whether parading or mixing it up in the mud, the competitors enjoyed the afternoon and eagerly looked forward to next year.

Attentive students listen to the advice of school administrators.

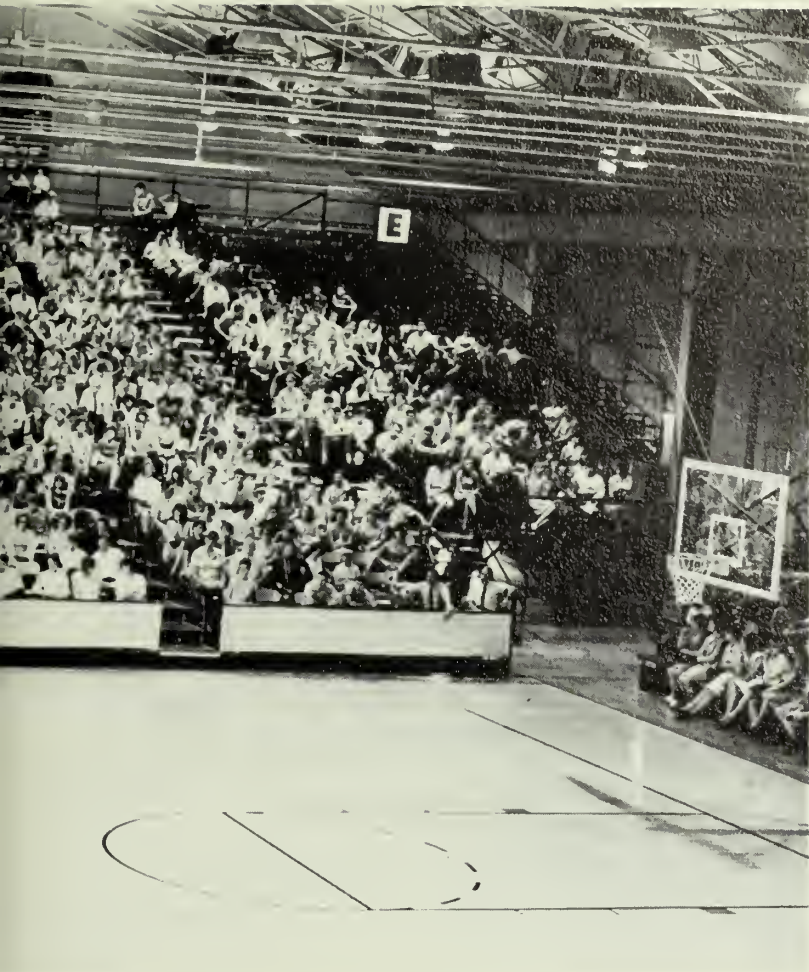

Some 1,903 freshmen, just 28 shy of last year's record class, arrived on campus September 7 for a week's orientation before the upperclassmen arrived, bringing the enrollment to 5,200 students. The orientation week was filled with activities for the incoming class, including the street dance and an evening of entertainment in the Reng Center. Several meetings were held in Indian Field House, while others were held in the Carl R. Reng Center Ballroom. Meetings were held with representatives of the school's administration and of the various schools, who discussed their jobs and answered any questions the students had.

Swinging sounds of the Kappa Kappa Psi band captured a second place trophy. Selections performed were "Al Hoot" and "Swing Low."

Emotion caught the audience as winning entry Janet Shoemate enacted a tense scene.

Talented performers and emcee Jan Harrell's witticisms added up to an evening of entertainment in the annual Alpha Gamma Delta Talent Show. A field of 17 contestants competed for the top three places, with Janet Shoemate's dramatic reading of "Elizabeth the Queen" capturing the judges' fancy. Second place was awarded the Kappa Kappa Psi band, and third was won by Betsy Milwee with a song and dance routine. The Talent Show was staged for the Cottage of Hope and Cerebral Palsy children.

Greeks shared the spotlight as they donned the masques of comedy and tragedy to stage five one-act productions in the annual Phi Mu Playhouse. Due to the renovation of Wilson Auditorium, the Playhouse was held in the Ballroom of the Reng Center, a more fitting atmosphere for the amateur dramatic talent. Capturing first place was Chi Omega and Sigma Phi Epsilon's adaptation of "Fantasticks," a popular musical depicting the scheming efforts of two fathers to link romantically a son and a daughter. To give further recognition, individual acting awards were also presented to outstanding performers, a new tradition begun last year. Playhouse proceeds were sent to S.S. AOPi, LXA Cop

Competition was stiff, but practice, talent and desire led Lambda Chi Alpha to victory for the sixth consecutive year in the fraternity division of the Alpha Omicron Pi All-Greek Songfest. Taking the honor in the sorority division, succeeding Chi Omega, was Alpha Omicron Pi, with a medley from "The Sound of Music." Accompaniment other than piano was introduced into the Songfest for the first time last spring with the Phi Mu's using a string bass and a snare drum. While awaiting the announcement of the winners, an All-Greek choir, composed of five members of each chorus, presented two selections.

Serving as mistress of ceremonies was Linda Wyatt.

Under the capable direction of John Erwin, LXA won its sixth straight title. John led the group to four of these victories.

Rating second with the judges in the fraternity division was Sigma Phi Epsilon, directed by Ronny Durham.

Gown, Swimsuit Competition Stiff

Because of scheduling difficulties, the first Miss ASU Pageant had to be held in Indian Field House on a Monday night. Nevertheless, it was a success; a worthy queen was chosen. The judges were introduced to the 20 contestants at a "Pepsi Party" the same day as the pageant. Consideration was given to three divisions of judging.

May Carol Lieblong Captures Talent

Talent is what separates the finalists from the rest of the group, and this year's field proved itself well endowed with talent in addition to beauty. The winner of this division was May Carol Lieblong, who did an original dance with her own specially designed lighting and costume. Variety was distinct among the 20 three-minute presentations.

A natural performer, May Carol displayed little nervousness either in the dressing room or on stage.

Jackie Rives is first as Trent Wood starts reading questions to the finalists. Meanwhile, others tremble.

Quick. Somebody catch her. Shock caused moment of concern for Miss ASU's heart. Jackie is happy, too—they'll both be in the Miss Arkansas Pageant.

Sorority Rush Hectic But Fun

Twice a year, for one solid week members of Arkansas State's four sororities subject themselves to an essential torture, that of bringing in new life. For both the rushers and the rushees this very hectic week consists of one party after another. The sorority girls are especially entangled, having little time for anything else. There must be a better way.

Fraternity Rush Changed

At one time fraternity rush was too elaborate and much too expensive. Then it was changed. Now it is not really rush anymore. It consists of what is commonly called a smoker. What you do is invite your top rushees to your suite, which is not really big enough to hold more than half that many. Then you fill the room with smoke and ask everyone if they want a bid.

Awards Banquet Honor Scholars

Two hundred sixty-five Arkansas State University students with a 3.5 or better for the fall semester were honored at the annual President's Awards Banquet in the Ballroom of the Reng Center this year. Dr. Carl R. Reng, A-State president, presented each student with a certificate in recognition of his high scholastic achievement. The principal speaker for the occasion was Dr. Paul McCain, president of Arkansas College at Batesville. Attending the banquet also were the administrative staff and deans of the different schools.

Dr. Carl R. Reng, president of Arkansas State University, commends outstanding academic accomplishments at the Awards Banquet.

After the official banquet proceedings were done, several students took advantage of the opportunity to ask Dr. McCain some questions of their own.

As Dean Moore called out the names of the students, Dr. Reng handed out certificates of scholastic recognition.

ROTC Makes Changes

Arkansas State's military science division has grown with the university. This year the division did away with the traditional Thursday drill sessions and expanded the training to five days a week with each cadet drilling only one hour instead of two. This not only proved popular with the cadet corps, but also made it possible for each cadet to receive more personal attention and instruction. As usual, cadets served as ushers for athletic events and other school functions. An expanded faculty and promotions for several faculty members gave the division more "brass" than it has ever had and also made classroom instructions more interesting. With the demand for Army officers growing every year, the ROTC program has supplied many of these demands and has at the same time given students the opportunity to get military and academic instruction.

"Present arms" is commanded by Cadet Col. Bayard Treneman as the 1st Battalion goes through opening assembly.

Regulation uniform? Who knows, but these honorary cadets did draw a lot of "Attention."

One of the nicest parts of being a member of the outstanding squad was the personal attention given each winning member.

These advanced corpsmen were in flight training.

With this type of persuasion many cadets volunteered to give blood.

The drill team honor guard raises the flag prior to an Indian football game.

Col. Harry G. Morris, PMS, presents scholastic awards to these cadets as Honorary Cadet Col. Steinsiek looks on.

Cold, Rain or Snow — Nothing Stops Drill

Most of the fall weather made outdoor drills enjoyable, but soon the bitter cold of winter arrived. But this year the cadets were lucky. The relatively small size of each battalion made indoor drills possible.

From the moment their private plane arrived at the Jonesboro airport, the Brothers Four drew a crowd, the biggest, of course, at their concert.

KASU announcer Bill Jowers interviewed the four folk singers at a private party held in their honor after the concert.

Brothers Four Avoid Falls, Wow ASU

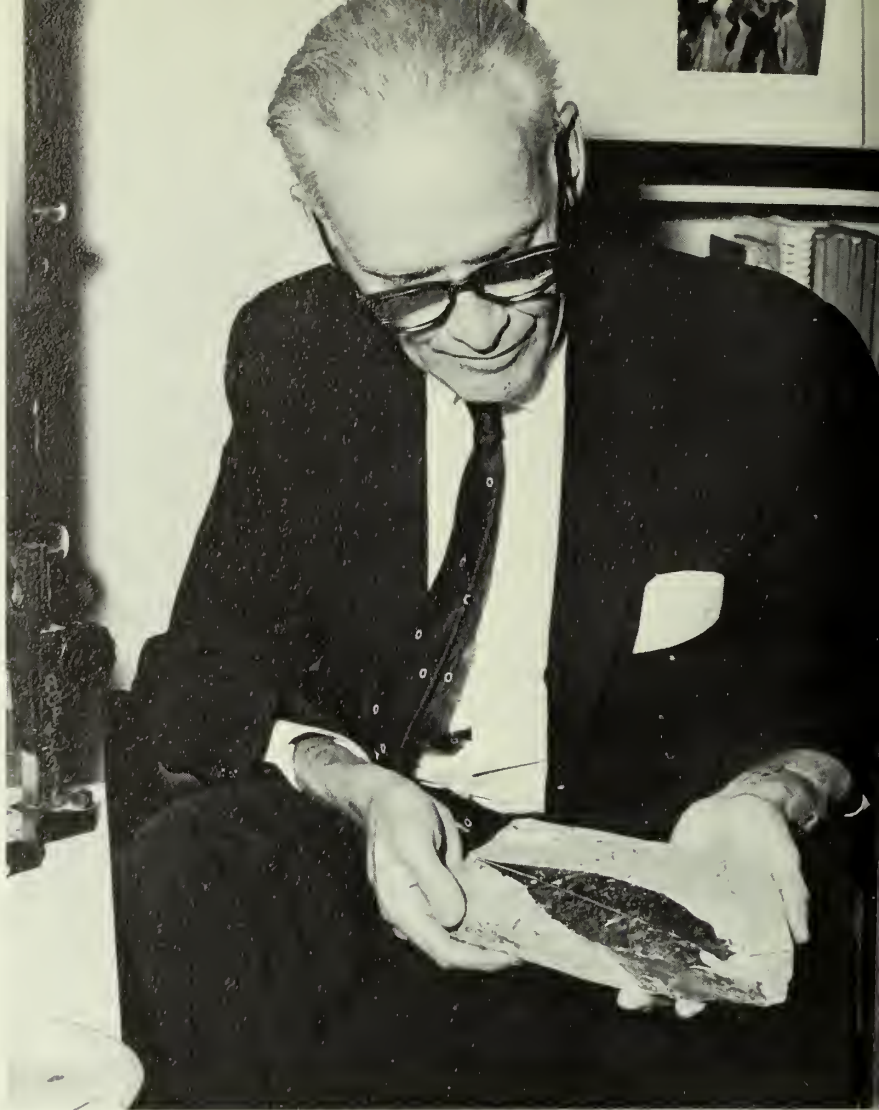

A special Valentine's Day treat was presented to the Arkansas State student body this year by the SGA—a two-hour concert by the world renowned Brothers Four. Unlike the Four Seasons' first attempt, the Brothers Four arrived safe, sound and on time at ASU. A near-sellout crowd watched the foursome, which got off to a slow start but came on strong with two encores. Among their songs were "Greenfields" and "Where Have All the Flowers Gone?"

"Hey, how did that photographer get in here?"

Museum Has Wide Appeal

Another important facility of A-State students is the museum. Located in the basement of the Dean B. Ellis Library, the museum is both an institutional and a community service. The museum is under the direction of Dr. Eugene B. Wittlake. With the assistance of Mrs. Wittlake and eight student preparators, the museum is expanding continuously. Natural science, pioneer history, military history, Arkansas Indian Culture and historic glassware and china are the five primary areas of concentration. Eight undergraduate courses and two graduate courses on campus use the museum for research and reference. The museum is a member of the Southeast Museum Conference, Arkansas Museum Association and the American Association of Museums.

Dr. Wittlake examines a prehistoric leaf fossil that will be put in a collection.

Finishing touches are put on a museum exhibit showing early musical instruments.

Student preparators for the museum are: (seated) Lanay Watson, (standing) Fred Shepherd, Thomas S. Russell, Hubert Crain, Dennis Newsom, Thomas Clark, Edward Dozier

Extra touches are added to an exhibit before it is put on display for viewing by the many visitors to the college museum.

"Elbow grease" is often needed to prepare interesting exhibits.

"But it's the toothpaste for those who can't brush after every meal."

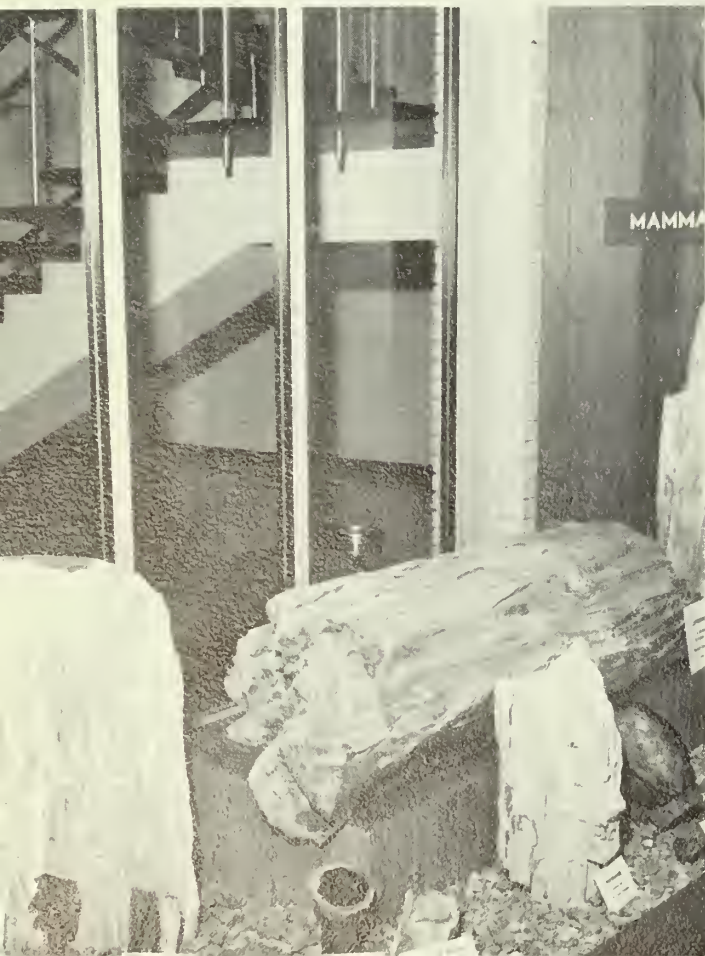

Would a cross-section of Kays Hall prove to be of more interest?

Museum Features Something For Everyone

"This thing almost looks real . . . Ouch!"

One of the more impressive exhibits in the ASU museum is the petrified wood.

"Grass Harp" Presented

Kathryn the maid (Jan Harrell) douses the sheriff in an effort to save the judge.

Backdrop of stage forms scene on street as the bake shop lady and town sheriff confer on the latest town scandal.

Shot in the night wounds hero Collin (Art Stewart)

Two sisters who don't get along with each other, run into problems as Verna tries to run life of Dolly (Ann Stewart) who lives in a fantasy world.

Due to the expansive remodeling program conducted this year in Wilson Auditorium only one major play was presented. "The Grass Harp," a play by the much notarized Trumann Capote was given March 16-18. The play follows two women and a teenager who escape the rigors and trials of society by periodically taking up residence in a tree house. The local objectors to this behavior soon cause a posse to be formed to return the miscreants to civilization.

Dr. Ritz (Pat Pettengell) pays Collin a visit. In the end, the good doctor double-crosses everyone.

In Renovated Wilson

Kathryn, the Indian maid, breaks into laughter when Dolly tells her that the judge has proposed to her.

Following his lecture, Howard K. Smith of the ABC news team was swarmed by curious local analysts.

Including 10 nationally known personalities and a famed orchestra, the 1967 Lecture-Concert Series was bigger and more varied than ever. Men like TV commentator Howard K. Smith, former Congressman Walter Judd, political analyst Murray Levin, mime Frans Reynders and poetry editor John Ciardi drew capacity crowds for their appearances. Except for the concert by the Chicago Chamber Orchestra, all the programs were presented free of charge to students, faculty members and the public. The series is planned by a committee of administrators, faculty members and students.

Lecture-Concert Series Best Yet

Leading off the series, Dr. Murray B. Levin, a Harvard graduate, spoke on "Cynicism and Corruption in American Politics."

One of the world's few outstanding pantomime artists, Frans Reynders charmed the A-State audience with his antics.

Illustrating his lecture with color slides, Dr. George Mylonas presented an interesting study on his previous archaeological experiences in Greece. He has authored 11 books.

John Ciardi, poetry editor of the Saturday Review, stopped to talk with a student and a member of the A-State Division of English faculty.

A veteran of 20 years in Congress, Dr. Walter Judd made an informative talk on the dangers of communism, emphasizing the troubled South-east Asian area.

Visiting ASU for two day, genetics expert Dr. Warner Kloepfer lectured publicly and to a number of classes.

Groups

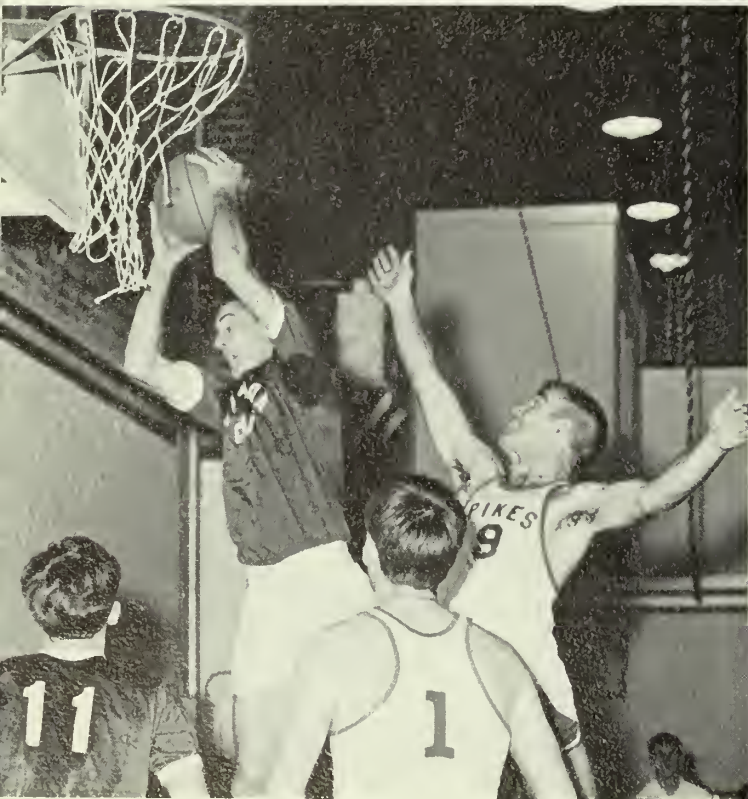

Greeks Finally Come Of Age

This was not an ordinary year for the Greek organizations on campus. For the first time no one fraternity or sorority dominated the others, and the social groups finally seemed to realize what their purpose is. The Greeks on the A-State campus have always been a little more than fraternities and sororities, but recent years have brought too many burdensome responsibilities. If these responsibilities are really lightened, the Greeks may be able to concentrate on social and civic funtions.

Pride in the campus mascot is displayed by a group of girls who realize the need for cleanliness.

Rugged recreation and healthy competition are a big drawing card for the Greeks in intramural action.

A winner is built and the builders settle back and wait for the decision of the judges.

When a group of girls get together, anything can happen. In this case they all wound up in a mud-hole.

During the year several organizations work to help needy children, especially for Christmas parties like this one.

Annual founders day and other banquets are always eagerly anticipated by the Greeks, especially those who normally eat in the cafeteria.

Each group sponsors a formal dance every year, in addition to numerous other dances and parties.

Collecting money is a Greek's favorite past-time, but this money they won't be able to keep, unfortunately.

Statesmen

For the Statesmen, the only non-Greek local fraternity on campus, the past year was one full of new activities and honors. Rick Hall was elected first vice president of the SGA and was also selected for Who's Who. Other Statesmen active in the SGA were Jim Sullivan and Harold Fuller. The Starlite Ball, highlighting the year's social events, was a first for the Statesmen, as was an alumni weekend climaxed by a masquerade party. In addition, an active alumni program has been initiated to include regular correspondence and a quarterly newsletter.

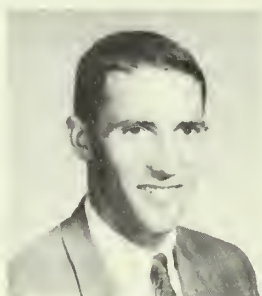

Effective costuming provided atmosphere for the Statesmen's first masquerade party.

Advising the Statesmen this year are Dr. J. Edward Bennett and Sammy Gennuso.

Cherokee Men's Council

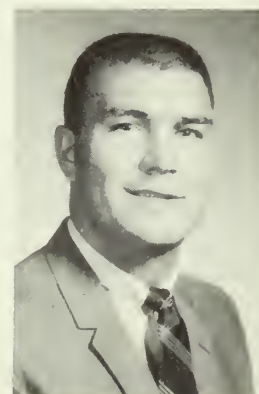

Closer unity between married students and functions of A-State are the dominant goals of the Cherokee Men's Council. In keeping with their goals, CMC takes part in various activities on campus. One of the projects undertaken by this organization is contributing their skills and support to the Student Government Association. A new meeting place, located in the new community center, has also been a step forward for the men. In their eighth year of existence, CMC is believed to be the only club of its kind in American colleges and universities.

Surveying the site of the new community center for Indian Village are four CMC members. Constructed with the married students in mind, the new center is the official meeting place for the organization.

SGA Behind ASU All The Way

Student Government Works Hand In Hand With Administration

First Vice President was Rick Hall.

It is a fairly easy feat for a president to function well if a majority of his fellow party members are in office, too. However, when the president stands almost singly as the representative of one party and the remainder of offices are filled by the opposing party, success does not come easy. However, this year Ray Hall did not let party majorities hamper his effectiveness. Under President Hall's able leadership, the SGA purchased the big neon billboard sign at the corner of Aggie and Caraway. The SGA office and SGA bookstore were moved and remodeled. A-State's SGA sponsored a resolution backing university status which was signed by each member school in the Arkansas Student Government Association. It also sponsored various activities during the year including Homecoming and two concerts featuring the Brothers Four and the Four Seasons.

Filling the shoes of president this year was Ray Hall Jr., a pre-med major from Jonesboro.

Dean Moore looks on in disbelief as campaign fury reaches its peak on election day.

Sam Gennuso and Dr. Donald Wells served as advisers this year to the SGA.

Simplicity is the guideline by which the ASU cheerleaders strive to promote school spirit. By organizing such activities as pep rallies and parades throughout the year, the girls endeavor to spark the enthusiasm of the entire student body—a difficult task in college cheering.

Grace and beauty add the finishing touches to the Marching Indian Band, and both are provided by the talented majorette line. Colorful routines for pregame and halftime presentations require many hours of practice, but the precision twirling highlights the band's showmanship and helps make halftime performances an anticipated part of the football season.

Newspaper Gets Name Change, Too

While Arkansas State College was engaged in changing its name to Arkansas State University, the school's publication was also making plans to change its name. Formerly the State College Herald, The Herald of Arkansas State University is published weekly. Twenty-five editions were printed this year plus a special edition when A-State received university status. Both editorial and typographical processes are performed by students, who benefit greatly by this practical experience.

One of "Tex" Plunkett's former star students, Joel Gambill, is now adviser of The Herald.

"But Roy, why can't I run an eight-column headline on the Phi Mu Playhouse?"

In charge of printing the newspaper are assistant printers Bobby Ruff, left, and Homer Hallett, who ought to be comedians.

Selecting and editing material for page two are J. B. Fisher Jr., Victor Dickson and Dan Stracner. Dickson also serves as advertising manager.

Society news for page three is handled by Beth Daniels, Barbara Sipa and Betty Stanley.

Difficult job of grading and editing sports copy is performed by Jimmy Miller, Jerry Schaeffer, Lindel Hutson and Harry Truman Moore (not pictured).

Co-editors Pat Montgomery and Roy Ockert strain weary eyes as last proofs for special edition are made.

Advising the KASU staff are Charles Rasberry and Darrel Cunningham.

"KASU on the air."

Staff copywriter hurriedly produces material for waiting announcers.

From teletype to announcer—fast and modern coverage of local and world-wide news by students.

KASU Now Concerned With TV

"This is the Indian sports network." Live coverage of athletic events is only one of the many services provided by KASU-FM, Arkansas State's student-operated radio station. News, music, campus lecture programs, informative interviews and special events are included on the KASU broadcast slate. This year a new phase of programming has come into reality. Television equipment and courses have been added to the broadcasting journalism facilities. The television equipment valued at approximately $50,000, consists of two television cameras, a video tape recorder, a slide projector, a film projector and studio equipment and other equipment necessary to the operation of a television studio. Various radio courses have been expanded to include TV, as well as the addition of three courses pertaining entirely to television. A workshop for radio-TV journalism majors and minors, the station and its facilities give students an opportunity to exercise and practice technical skills learned in the classroom while keeping the ASU student body well-informed.

A multitude of instructions and dials, plus turntable and microphone confront the student announcer in the control room.

Sports

Tomlinson, Floyd Direct State's Fine Athletics

In over 20 years as Arkansas State athletic director, J. A. "Ike" Tomlinson has built a well-rounded athletic program. In addition to managing the overall athletics, Tomlinson has coached the Tribe baseball squads. Tomlinson served as the school's football and basketball mentor before taking over as athletic director.

DIRECTORS OF ATHLETICS

Coach Don Floyd has many duties besides that of assistant athletic director. He has done an outstanding job as defensive back-field coach of the Indian football team and is the head tennis coach. Floyd became assistant athletic director when the position was created two years ago.

Ellender Named District's Best

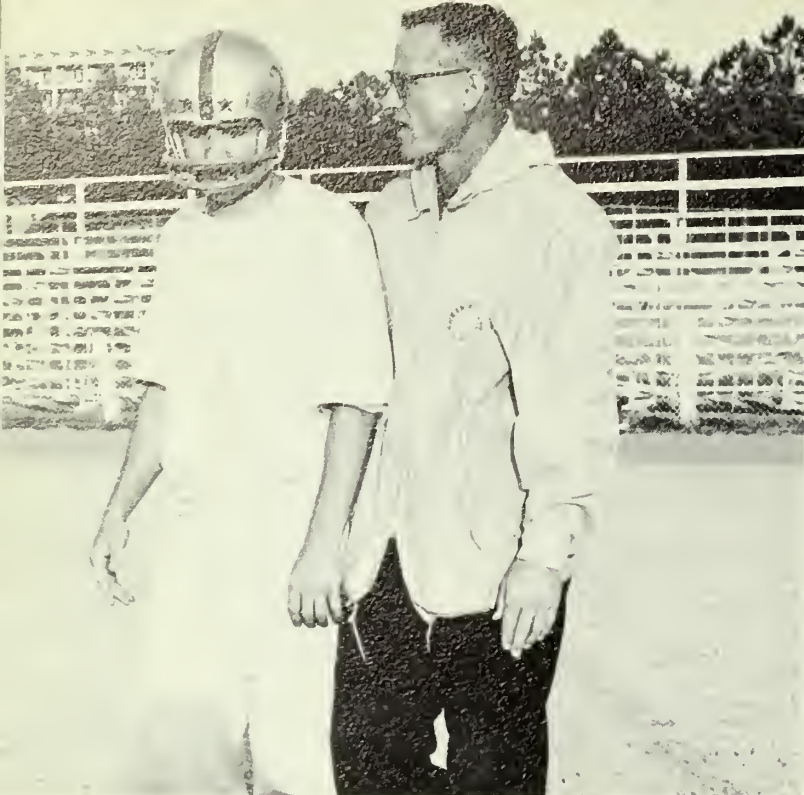

Bennie Ellender has already established himself as one of A-State's finest head football coaches in the school's history. Ellender's teams have a 22-11-2 record, and this past season Ellender was honored as District Six college division coach of the year. Ellender is a native of Louisiana and gained two victories over Louisiana teams this past season.

Student and graduate assistants have been a great aid to A-State's athletic endeavors this season. Marvin Hagaman and William Sugg, graduate assistants in the physical education department, coached the freshman football team, and student assistants Andy Anderson and Dave Aubel aided the basketball team.

Developing young defensive backs like redshirt freshman Orley Massena has been Coach Floyd's major task.

Nick-named "the Bull," Coach Davidson has produced some fine offensive lines since coming to Arkansas State.

Groundwork Done By Grid Assistants

Tutoring the defensive line is Coach Armstrong, the veteran member of A-State's staff.

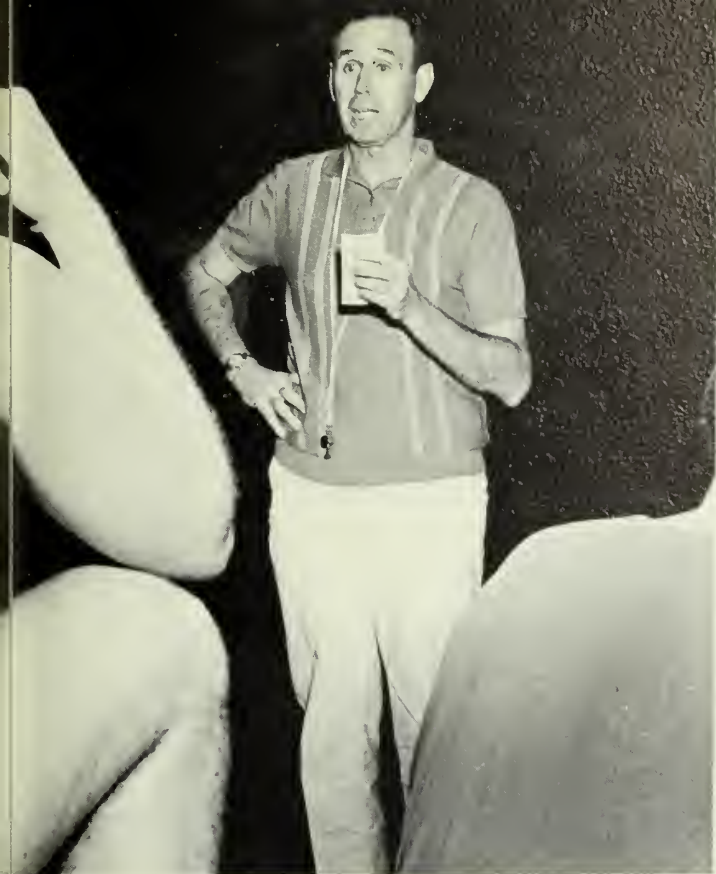

One of the best ways to become a successful head coach is to organize a staff of fine assistant coaches. Head Coach Ellender has done this, and the Indians have reaped the profits of it. Bill Templeton tutors A-State's explosive offensive backfield, while Bill Davidson, a former Jonesboro High coach, directs the offensive line. Don Floyd coaches the defensive backfield, while Wayne Armstrong, the senior member of the staff with five years experience, handles the defensive line.

The newest addition to the football staff is Coach Templeton, a former Tribe star who handles the offensive backs.

Speight, Rauth, Rose Direct Other Sports

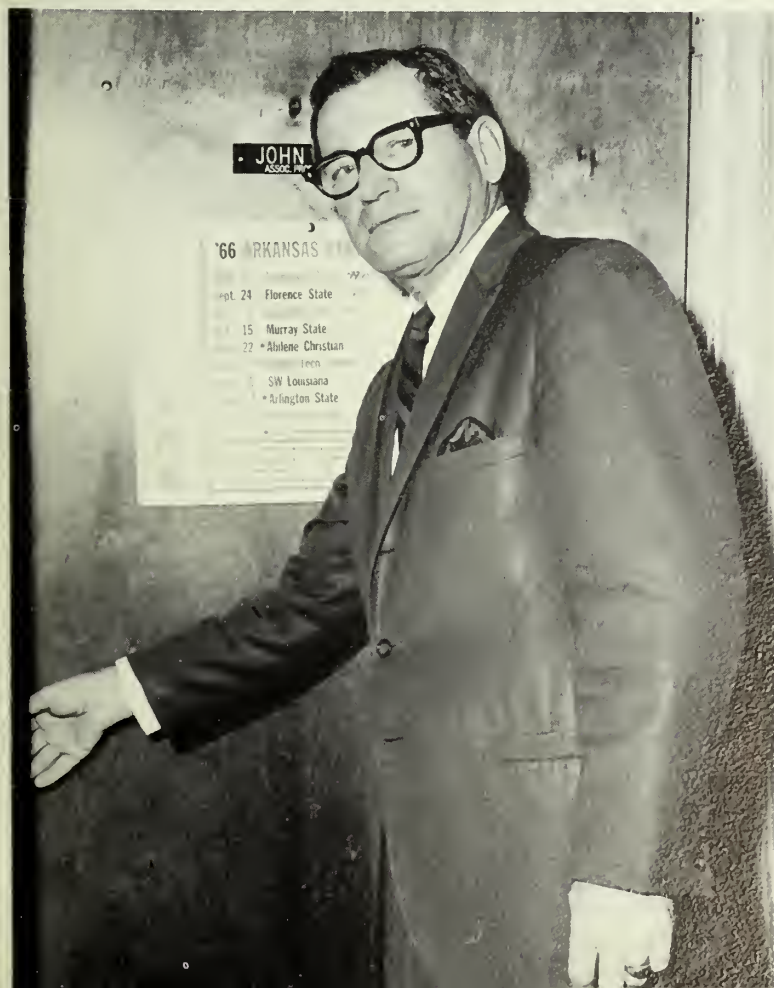

After his successful career at Arkansas State Junior College coach Marvin Speight came to A-State and has successfully led Indian basketball fortunes for four years. Speight received his B.S. at Arkansas State Teachers College and his M.S.E. at George Peabody College.

Coach John Rauth tutors the A-State golf team. Rauth was for several years a successful Indian basketball coach before health reasons forced him to give up his duties. Coach Rauth's linksters participate in rugged Southland Conference play.

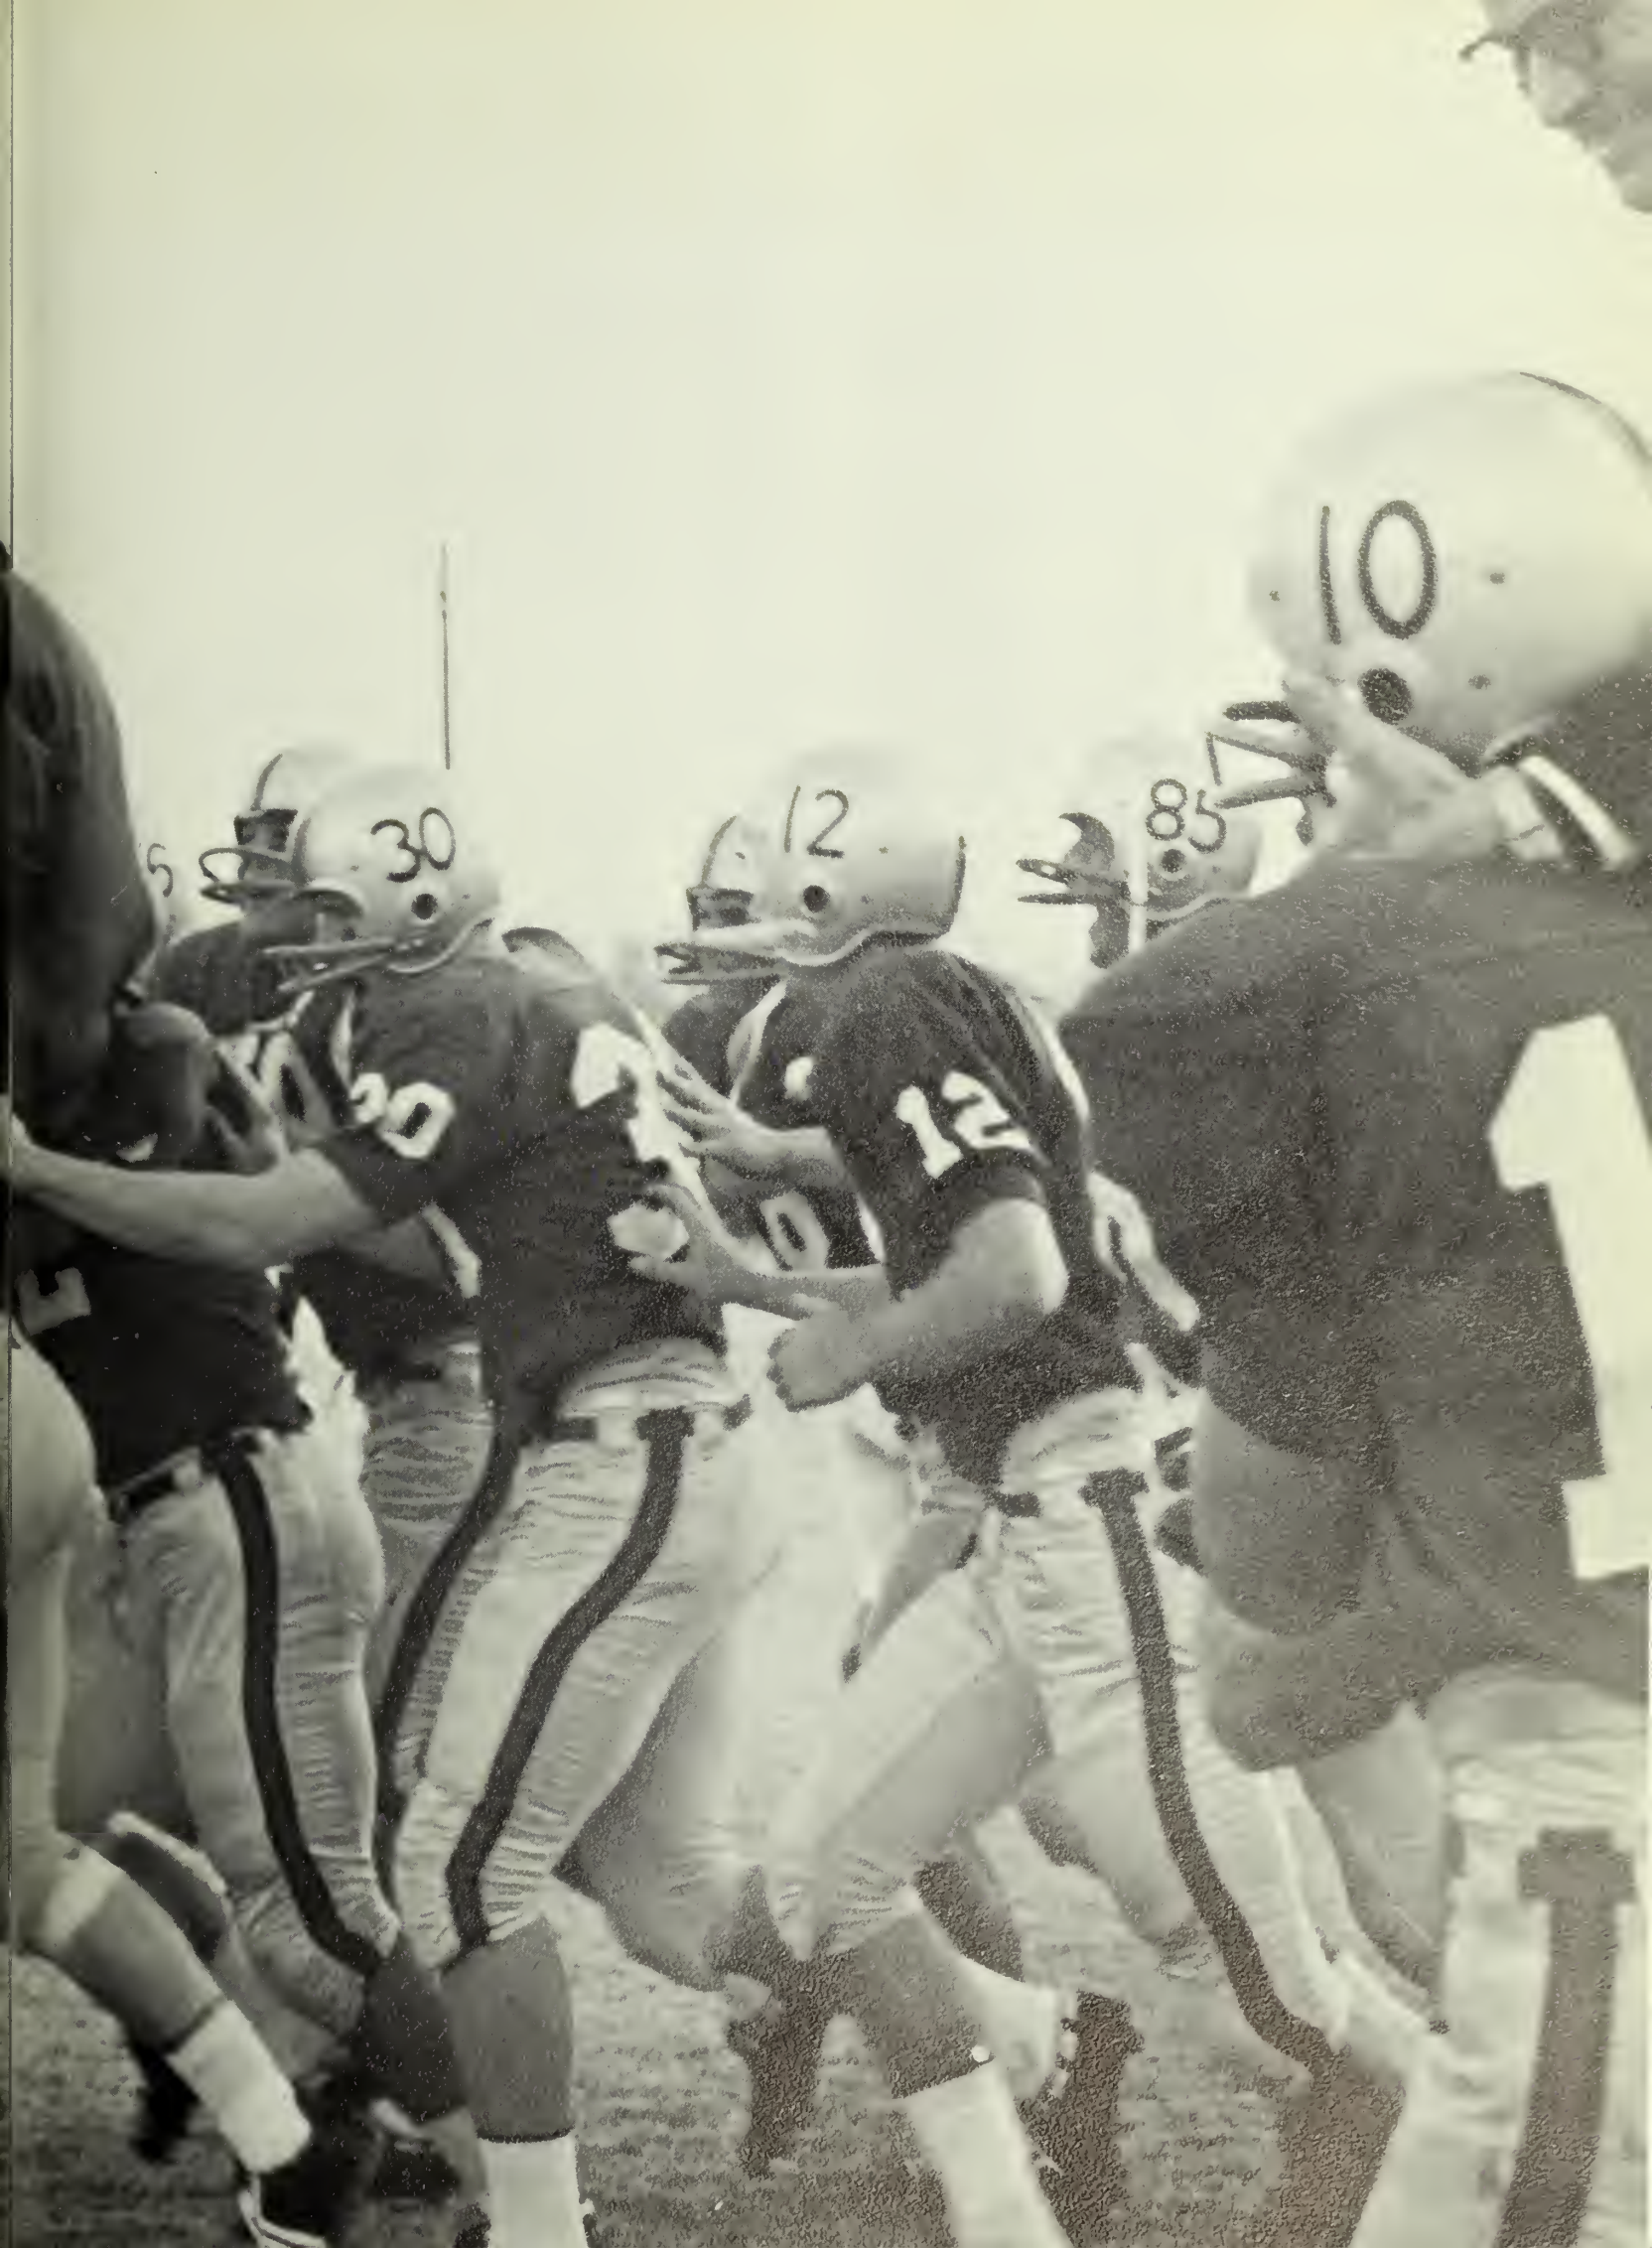

Coach John Rose has used his fine recruiting program to bring A-State's track and cross-country out of mediocrity. Rose's teams have participated against some of the nation's finest tracksters and have made outstanding showings. Rose doubles as assistant basketball coach.

Indians Finish No. 6 In Nation

Gwin, Moore Cited By AP

Versatile Terry Gwin was named to the Associated Press college division All-American second team. Gwin, who started at quarterback for the Indians in 1965, made the switch to halfback with little difficulty to lead the Tribe offense. Gwin ran for 607 yards on 135 carries to set an SLC rushing standard, and he was a break-away threat any time he touched the pigskin. He also snagged 23 passes for 365 yards and completed seven of 11 pass attempts for 111 yards. Gwin crossed the goal line nine times for a point total of 54 points. Terry received a knee injury in the Southwest Louisiana game but still played an outstanding game against Trinity in his final collegiate game. He was twice named Southland Conference offensive player of the week following the Abilene Christian and Lamar Tech contests, and he was a first team All-SLC pick.

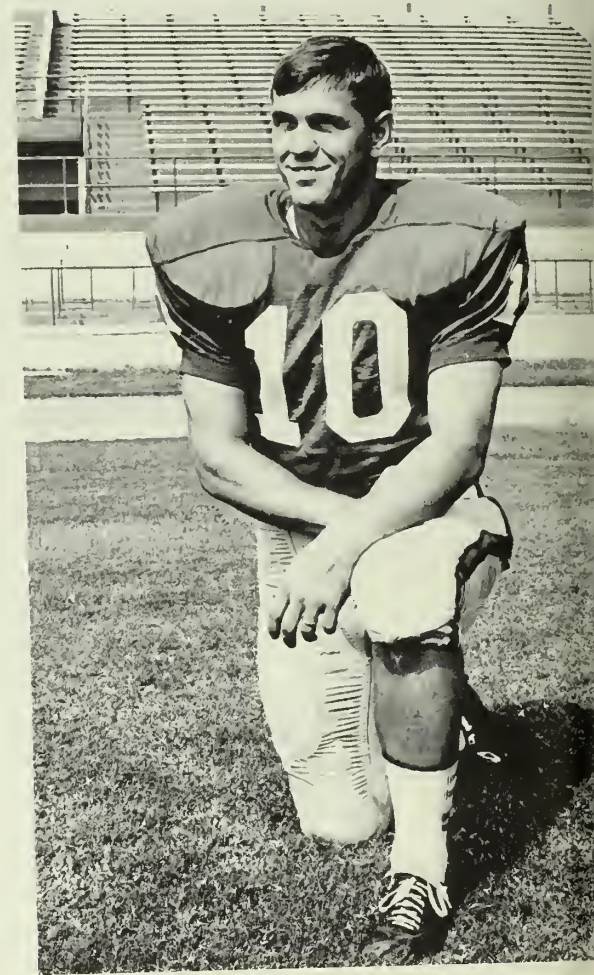

Truman Moore, the steady senior who didn't miss a game during his college career, received honorable mention college division All-American as a linebacker. Moore came directly out of an outstanding high school career at Corning and played in every Indian game as a freshman. As a sophomore and junior, Moore was a member of the "Mean Green" unit and played both offense and defense. When the Indians went to the two-platoon system this season, Moore quickly earned a starting berth at the position he loved best—defensive linebacker. Moore called defensive signals for the Indians and averaged 9.6 tackles per game. He also intercepted a pass and recovered two fumbles. Truman was named the SLC's defensive player of the week after an outstanding game against Murray State in the Tribe's 44-0 shutout victory.

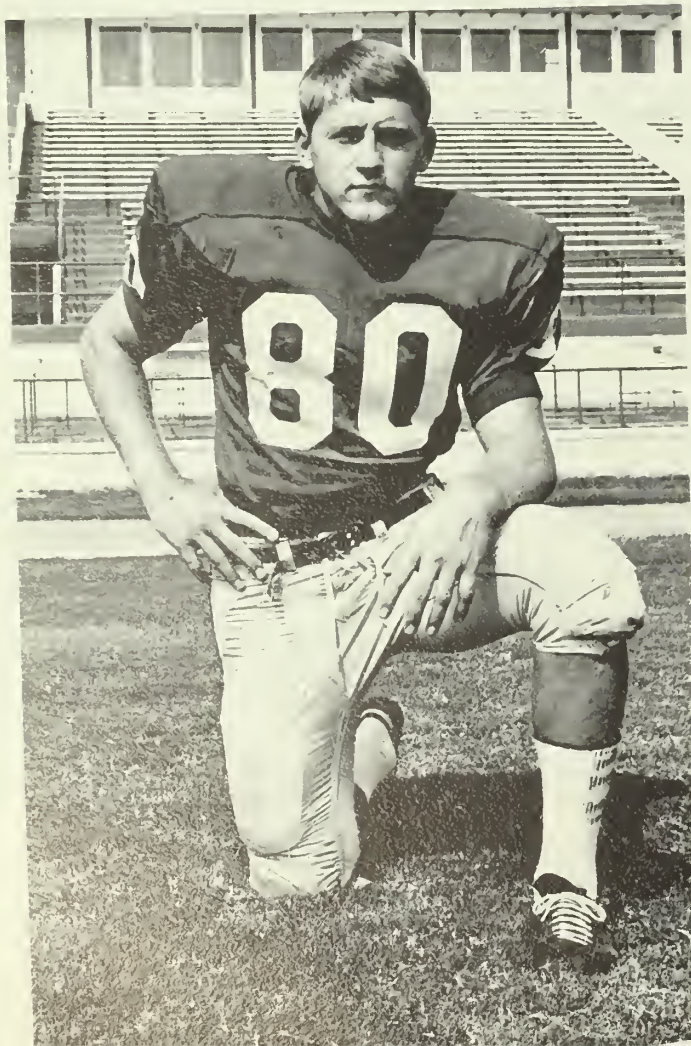

Three Indians Gain All-SLC First Team

Ron Worthen—After playing in the shadow of two experienced centers the past two seasons, Ron got his chance to prove his abilities and responded by being named to the All-SLC team. Worthen came to State weighing only 185 pounds but now packs 235 pounds on his 6-5 frame. He is still gaining weight, and after his senior year next season he may be a top pro prospect. He's the best deep-punt snapper the Indians have had in several seasons.

Dick Ritchey—A repeat selection, was again the Tribe's top kick returner as well as a fine safety-man. Ritchey intercepted three enemy passes and returned them for 42 yards. He returned 14 kickoffs for 379 yards, including an 85-yard touchdown return against Louisiana Tech in the opening minute of play. Ritchey also returned 11 punts for 97 yards. Like Jumper and Worthen, Ritchey is also a junior and has one more season.

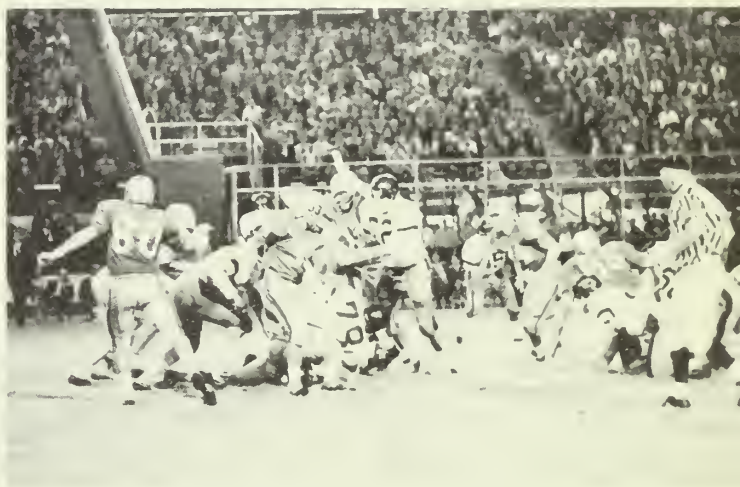

Gerald Jumper—Although he didn't finish among the top five pass receivers in the conference, Jumper made the clutch catches and demonstrated ferocious blocking to gain first team honors. Jumper caught passes while diving, jumping, with one hand and even caught one aerial between his legs as he gathered in 32 passes for 511 yards. Jumper came up with an important fumble recovery while covering a punt in the SW Louisiana game that set up the game-tying touchdown and set the stage for a 17-14 upset victory.

Chief Big Track Stays Busy During Tech Encounter

Despite the futile attempts of four Tennessee Tech tacklers, Steve Gankiewicz bangs over the goal line for his first of two touchdowns for the evening as Virgil Peyton throws a last key block.

Kays Stadium looked more like a horse-racing track than a football field as the Tribe bombed Tennessee Tech in the season opener. Chief Big Track was forced into action seven times as the Tribe rolled to a 49-13 win. Tim Keane fired with perfection as he completed 14 of 21 aerials for 226 yards. Gerald Jumper was his main target as he caught four passes for 46 yards. Full-back Steve Gankiewicz got two touchdowns on short bursts. Gary Hankins carried the ball only one time but made the best of it as he scored the final A-State tally. Gary Elliott set a Southland Conference record as he booted seven straight extra points to complete the Indians' scoring. The tough A-State defense, led by Bill Bergey, Eugene Thompson, Charley Hinrichs and Gary Hankins, kept T-Tech at bay with its rugged hitting and good pass defense. Bergey collected 15 tackles, forced three fumbles and intercepted a pass, and for his efforts, he was the SLC's Outstanding Defensive Player of the Week.

Gang tackling kept this Tennessee Tech player from advancing this kickoff far as Indians keep coming.

Barely clearing the hands of onrushing linemen, the ball sails through the cross bars for one of Gary Elliott's seven extra points

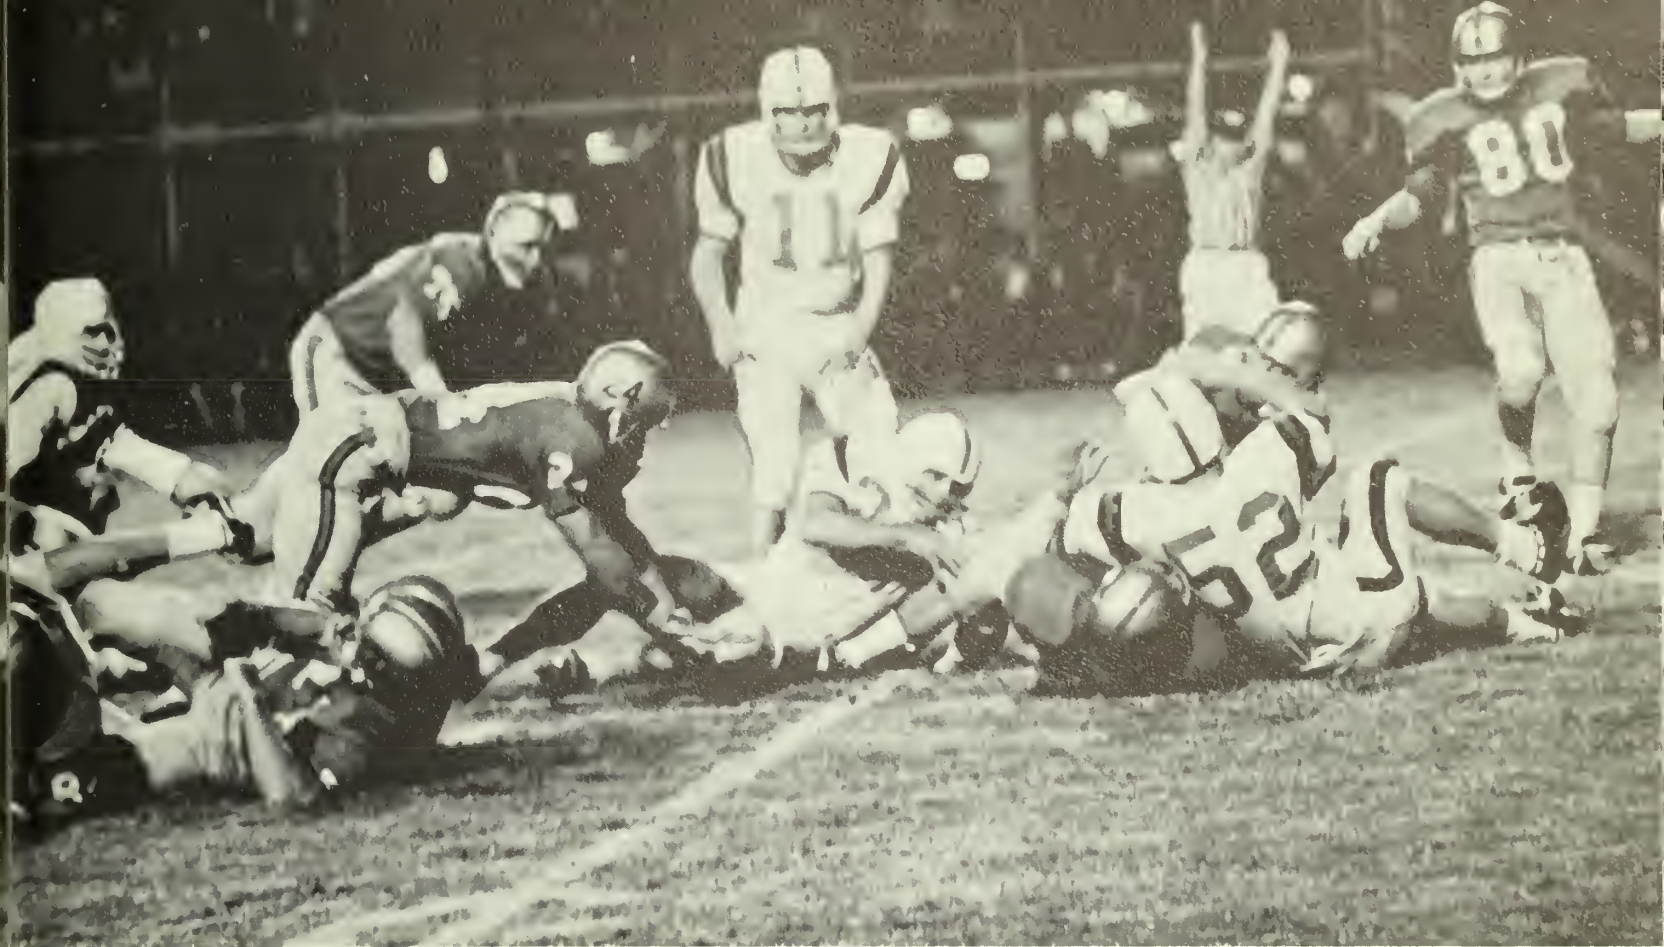

A-State's inexperienced Indians romped past the Florence State Lions 27-7 in their first road game. The Redmen amassed 416 yards total offense. Fullback Steve Gankiewicz contributed two touchdowns while Benny Winford and Terry Gwin accounted for one each. Orley Massena set up the second Indian TD with a pass interception. Gary Elliott kicked three extra points. Don Cornelius scored the only Florence State touchdown.

Putting the finishing touches on this Bulldog runner is noseman Eugene Thompson (63). Thompson had help from Dan Buckley and Rick McBride, both of whom have a grip on the runner's leg despite lying on the ground. Several other Indians are joining in the pursuit.

Indians Run Over Lions In First Road Contest

Breaking up this attempted Louisiana Tech pass are Bryan Caplinger (15) and Orley Massena, who is on the ground. The receiver appeared to have made the catch, but the tackle dislodged the ball.

Going over a teammate to score is Indian fullback Steve Gankiewicz as teammate Gerald Jumper looks on. A nice hole had been cleared by blocking-back Benny Winford (24), tackle Jackie Smith (71), center Ron Worthen and guards Dennis Roberts and Manuel Montes, some of whom were not caught in this shot.

Louisiana Tech's Richie Golmon found no place to go on this carry as Bergey (66), Ritchey (10) and Massena (22) apply the halt to the speedy Bulldog.

Tribe Converts Bad Omen Into Upset Win Over Tech

The opening kickoff of the Arkansas State-Louisiana Tech game October 8 looked to many of the 7,200 fans in Kays Stadium as a bad omen when Tech's Richie Golmon returned it 94 yards for a touchdown. However, no sooner had the scorekeeper posted a "seven" under Tech's name when he had to put up another score—this time for the Indians. Dick Ritchey had caught the Bulldogs' ensuing kickoff and had scrambled 85 yards for a six-pointer. A-State's PAT went wide and the Indians yielded a 7-6 lead to the visitors with less than half of one minute of playing time gone. Tech's lead was shortlived. Following the third kickoff in less than one minute, the Dogs were forced to punt, and the Tribe took over on Tech's 43-yard line. Quarterback Tim Keane mastered an air and ground attack that pushed the Tribe to the Bulldogs' three, where fullback Steve Gankiewicz plunged in for the score. Gary Elliott's PAT boosted the Redskins to a 13-7 lead. Two more touchdowns by halfback Terry Gwin, one on a 78-yard run and the other on a pass from Keane, jelled A-State's 26-13 upset over Tech, who made one other TD with 22 seconds remaining in the encounter.

Like nearly everything else the Thoroughbreds tried, this pass failed as All-American linebacker Truman Moore (64) goes high in the air to stop the play.

Despite that extra effort that gained him All-American honors, halfback Terry Gwin (11) just can't quite reach this Tim Keane pass. The Indians won easily, 44-0, as several fans watched.

Tribe Halts Murray State

Bringing home its fourth consecutive victory of the year, the Tribe combined an overpowering defense with a high scoring second half to take a 44-0 win over Murray State. A-State played one of its best defensive games of the season, holding the Thoroughbreds to only 24 yards rushing. In the first half Mike Everett kicked a 32-yard field goal. Terry Gwin scored on a one-yard dive. In the second half Tim Keane threw touchdown passes to Benny Winford and Dennis Zolper, who also recovered a fumble in the end zone. Steve Gankiewicz also scored. Bill Berghey made 13 tackles and Truman Moore had nine.

The Tribe combined hard hitting with heads-up football to account for three fumbles and one pass interception, in winning the first conference game of the season, 33-22, over Abilene Christian. In the first quarter Ron Worthen recovered a dropped punt for A-State on the Wildcat five-yard line. On the next play Steve Gankiewicz scored and Gary Elliott's kick was good. Terry Gwin scored twice before half-time, both on 17-yard plays. The half-time score was 20-10, Arkansas State. In the second half Bill Bergey recovered a fumble on Abilene's 35-yard line. Several plays later Benny Winford scored on a one-yard dive. On the ensuing kickoff an Abilene player fumbled the ball and Dan Buckley recovered on the Wildcat 23. Terry Gwin hit paydirt from four yards out. Bergey led defense with 16 tackles and Gwin led the offense with 68 yards on 21 carries.

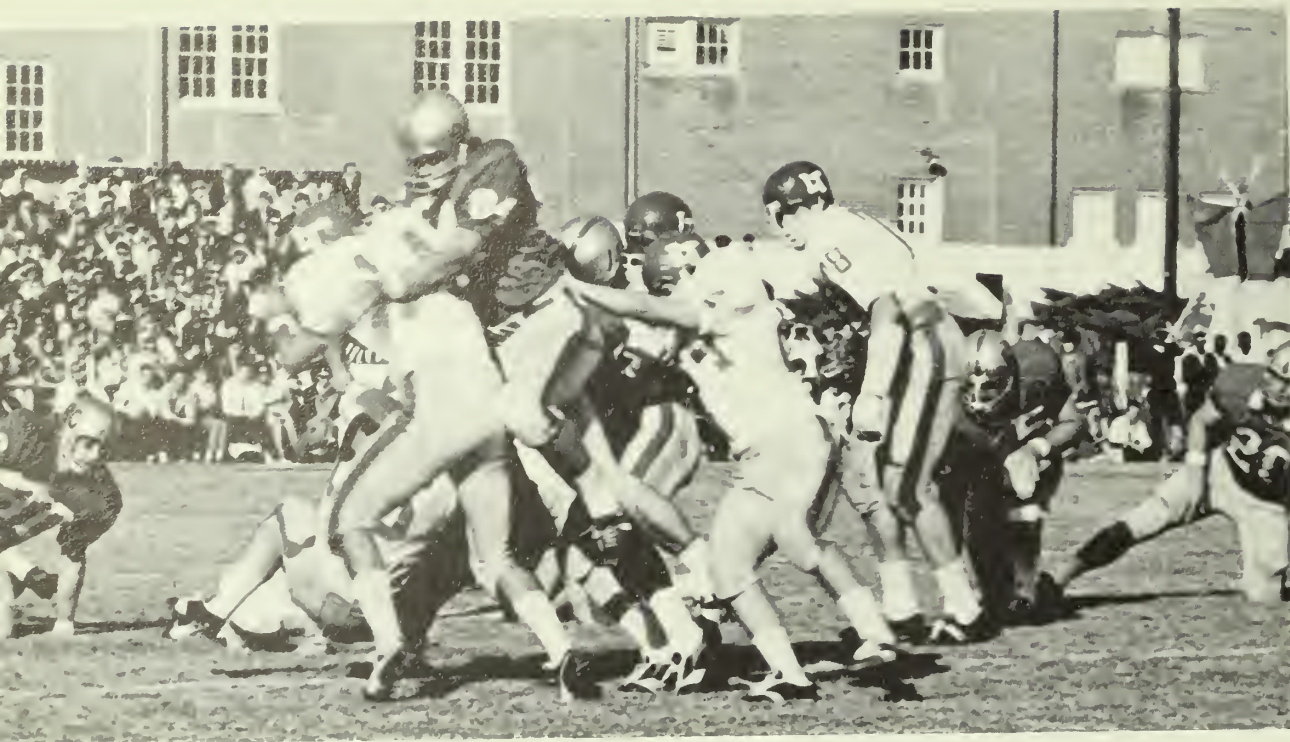

Indians Rap Abilene In Southland Debut

Spreading his broad shoulder, Charles Hinrichs (70), along with the help of Steve Puryear (81), stops this Abilene offensive attempt. Coming up to help are Dick Ritchey (10) and Gwin Wood (33).

Awaiting a Tim Keane pass is Gerald Jumper (80) who started his bid for Southland Conference honors with the Abilene Christian game. Ron Worthen, another All-SLC performer, looks on. Both men's efforts in the 33-22 contest helped them gain post-season honors. Worthen had a big fumble recovery early in the game.

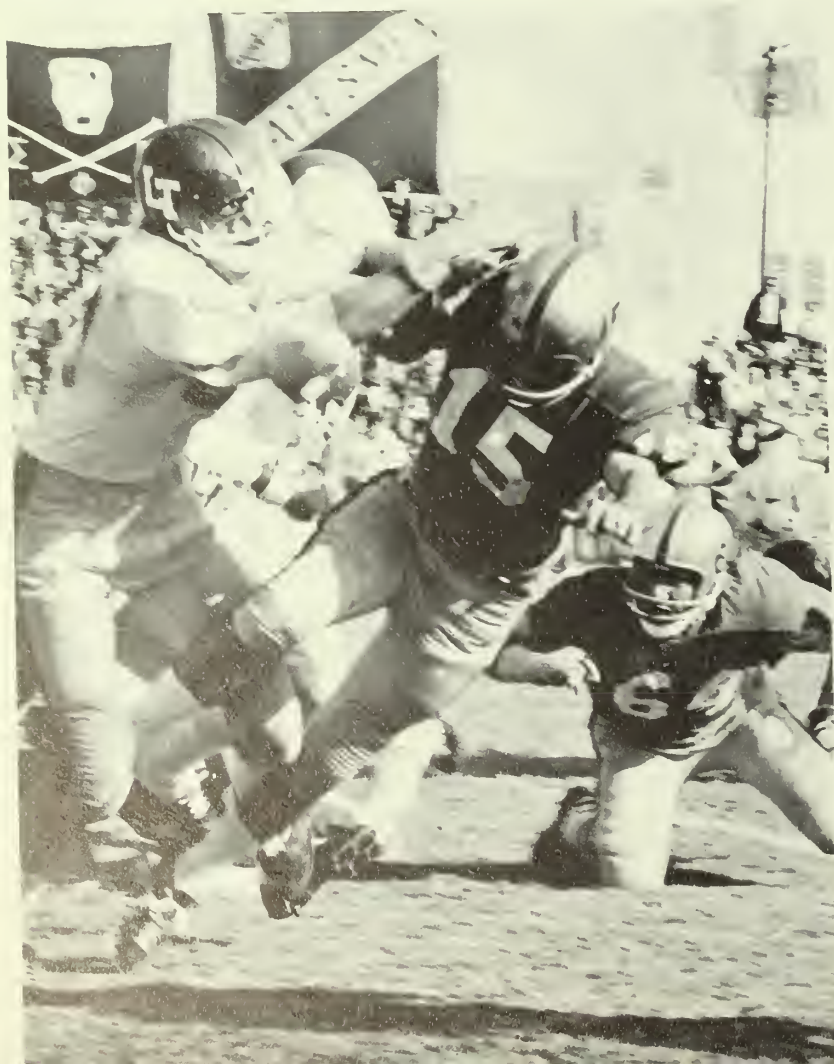

Offensive end Virgil Peyton (84) gets in some defensive action as he stops Lamar's Jake David (14), who had intercepted an A-State pass.

Lamar Defeats Indians 17-0

Power sweeps like this one by Lamar's big Tom Smiley gave the Cardinals the ground game that led them to their victory.

A first down was gained as end Gerald Jumper hauled in another pass, this one coming from halfback Terry Gwin on a run-or-pass option play.

HOMECOMING

Player Of Week Honors Go To Gwin

Playing its best football in two seasons, Lamar Tech combined experience and the running of 228-pound Tom Smiley to give the Redskins their first heartbreaking loss of the season, 17-0, before a record Homecoming crowd of 9,245. The loss turned the gala event into a dismal day. The Indians played a respectable game in the first half, but Lamar punctured the A-State line and halted Tim Keane's attempts to get a score. The closest the Indians got to making a tally was on the Cards' 13-yard-line in the opening minutes of the tilt. Seven times out of 10, the Redskins were forced to begin offensive action within their own 25-yard line. Injuries also aided in the Indians' first loss.

Pass interference didn't stop sure-handed Gerald Jumper from hauling in this Tim Keane pass in one of the Homecoming game's brighter moments. Lamar later switched to double coverage on Jumper.

It often took more than five Cardinal tacklers to halt Terry Gwin (11) as he ran, passed and snagged passes to be named the SLC's offensive player of the week despite the Indians' loss

Waiting for another opportunity to move the football, the Indian offensive plans its strategy for the upcoming series of downs.

Everett's Field Goal Gives A-State Upset Win

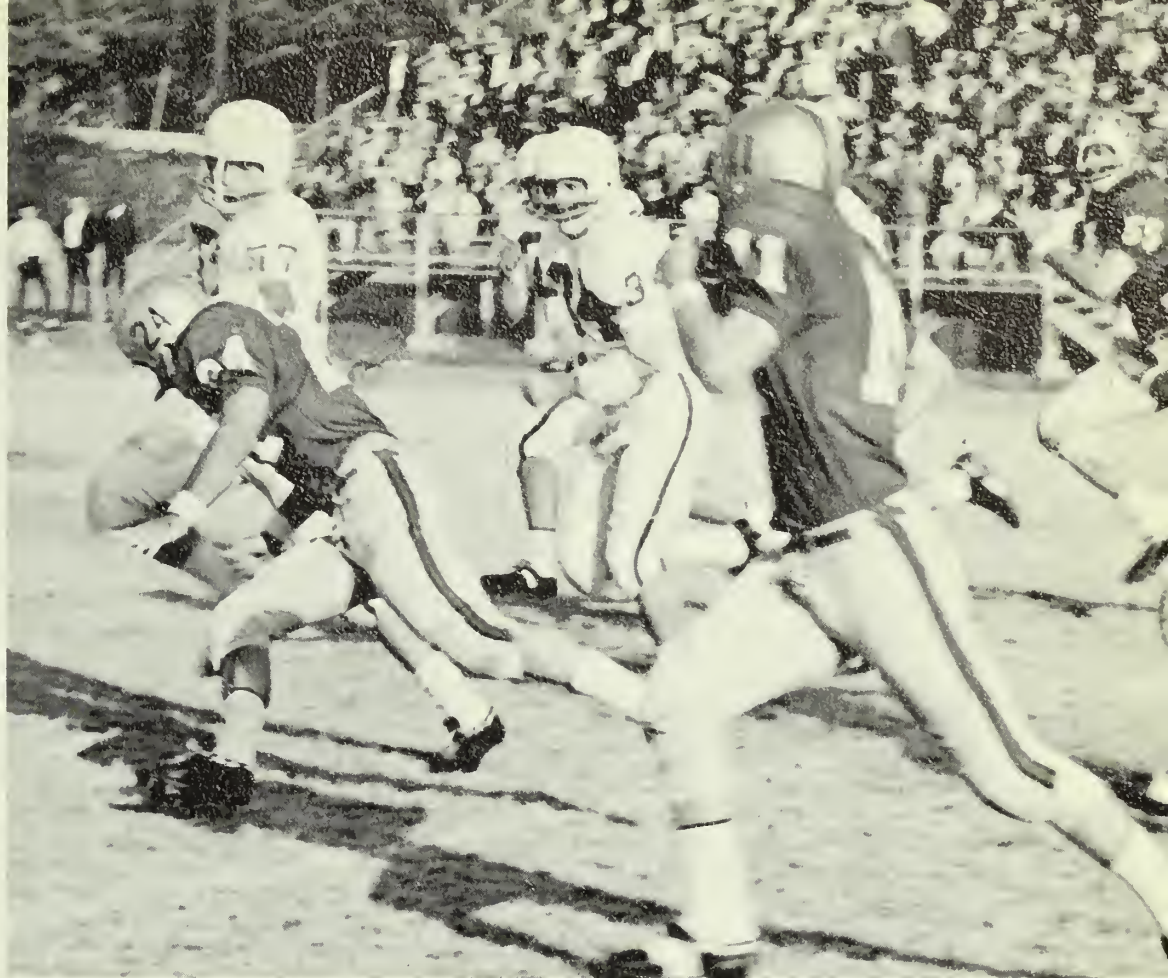

Up-the-middle blocking like this shown on this important scoring play accounted for many an A-State touchdown. In the background is a pole supporting the new lighting system at Kays Stadium.

Springing back after their first loss of the season, the Indians came from a 14-0 deficit to edge the Southwestern Louisiana Bulldogs 17-14 on Mike Everett's 30-yard field goal with 1:20 left in the game. With the score 14-0 halfway through the second quarter, Terry Gwin led the Redskins 69 yards for their first touchdown of the night. Steve Gankiewicz scored on a one-yard dive. The half-time score was 14-7. The big break of the night came when Gerald Jumper recovered a dropped punt on the Bulldogs' 27-yard line. Gankiewicz got the call again from the four and made it a 14-14 game. With four minutes left, A-State took over on a punt at the Cajuns' 42-yard line. On fourth down Mike Everett kicked a 30-yard field goal to give the Indians a hard-earned victory. Gankiewicz led the team in rushing with 99 yards. Steve Puryear was named the game's outstanding defensive player.

Indians Fall To Arlington

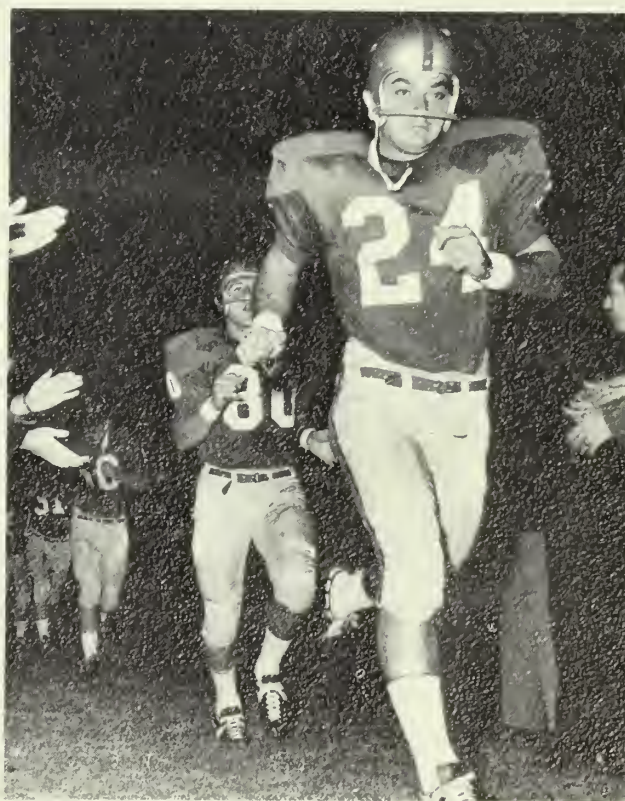

A 75-yard scoring march by Arkansas State after the opening kickoff failed to discourage the Rebels of Arlington State, who went on to win the game, 16-6. The Tribe held the Rebels scoreless until near the end of the first half when a 19-yard pass to Arlington's Mike Baylor tied the score, 6-6. In the third quarter, the Rebels drove to the Tribe's goal line and were stopped there, giving the Rebs a chance for a field goal. A pass interception was the cause of Arlington's next score, giving the Baylor-Thomas duo a chance to click and adding seven points to Arlington's nine. The Tribe had two chances to score after the first quarter. A recovered fumble and a blocked punt in the third quarter both failed to materialize, leaving the Indians with six points.

Springing loose behind fine down-field blocking is Terry Gwin. Leading the way are Benny Winford (24), Steve Gankiewicz (20) and Ron Worthen (55). This run set up a Tribe TD in the Trinity contest

Rugged pass defense like this displayed by Gary Hankins (34) made the Indians a rough team to score against.

Through a line of spirited fans come the Indians in quest of another home victory. Students supported the Tribe well, and a large contingent followed State to Murray

Overall Effort Gives A-State Win In Finale

Knees flying high, Steve Gankiewicz heads toward his first of three TD's which led A-State to a 20-7 victory over Trinity. Ganko's performance gained him player of the week honors.

Displaying the same never-say-die desire that carried them to earlier victories, the determined Indians overcame injuries and a passing barrage by Trinity's All-SLC quarterback Donnie Witwiski to upset the Tigers 20-7 in the season's final contest. The win gave A-State part of a three-way tie for second in the SLC race, and a fine 7-2 season ledger in a year in which the Tribe wasn't figured to finish above the .500 mark. Fullback Steve Gankiewicz tallied all three six-pointers for the Tribe as he set SLC marks for most touchdowns and most points in a single season, and he was playing with a painful foot injury. Terry Gwin was bothered by his knee injury but still managed to pick up the necessary yardage to set an SLC season rushing mark. Gwin's broken-field run with a Tim Keane pass set up the Tribe's second touchdown. A-State's defense came up with four pass interceptions and held Trinity's highly praised passing attack to just one touchdown. The Tigers' Witwiski did set a single game total offense mark, but he couldn't push his team across the goal line as the Tribe toughened again and again to halt Trinity drives.

Rushing the passer is often the best pass defense, as demonstrated by Charles Hinrichs, (70), Dan Buckley (72) and David Young (79). This big pass rush resulted in four timely Indian interceptions.

Cross country team—Bob Giersberg, Barry Garlow, Tony Edwards, Jim Kennedy, Pat O'Toole, Kelly Parrish, Coney Southerland, Jim Kelley and John Arment.

Bob Giersberg Cross Country All-American

After rolling to its first undefeated regular season, the Arkansas State cross country team finished second to an always powerful Abilene Christian team in the Southland Conference meet at Arlington, Texas. Bob Giersberg, team captain, got some fine support from junior Tony Edwards and freshmen Kelly Parrish, Jim Kennedy and Patrick O'Toole. The season wins came over Murray State, Mississippi State, Louisiana Tech, Southwestern of Memphis, Southeast Missouri and at the Harding College and Southwest Missouri Invitationals.

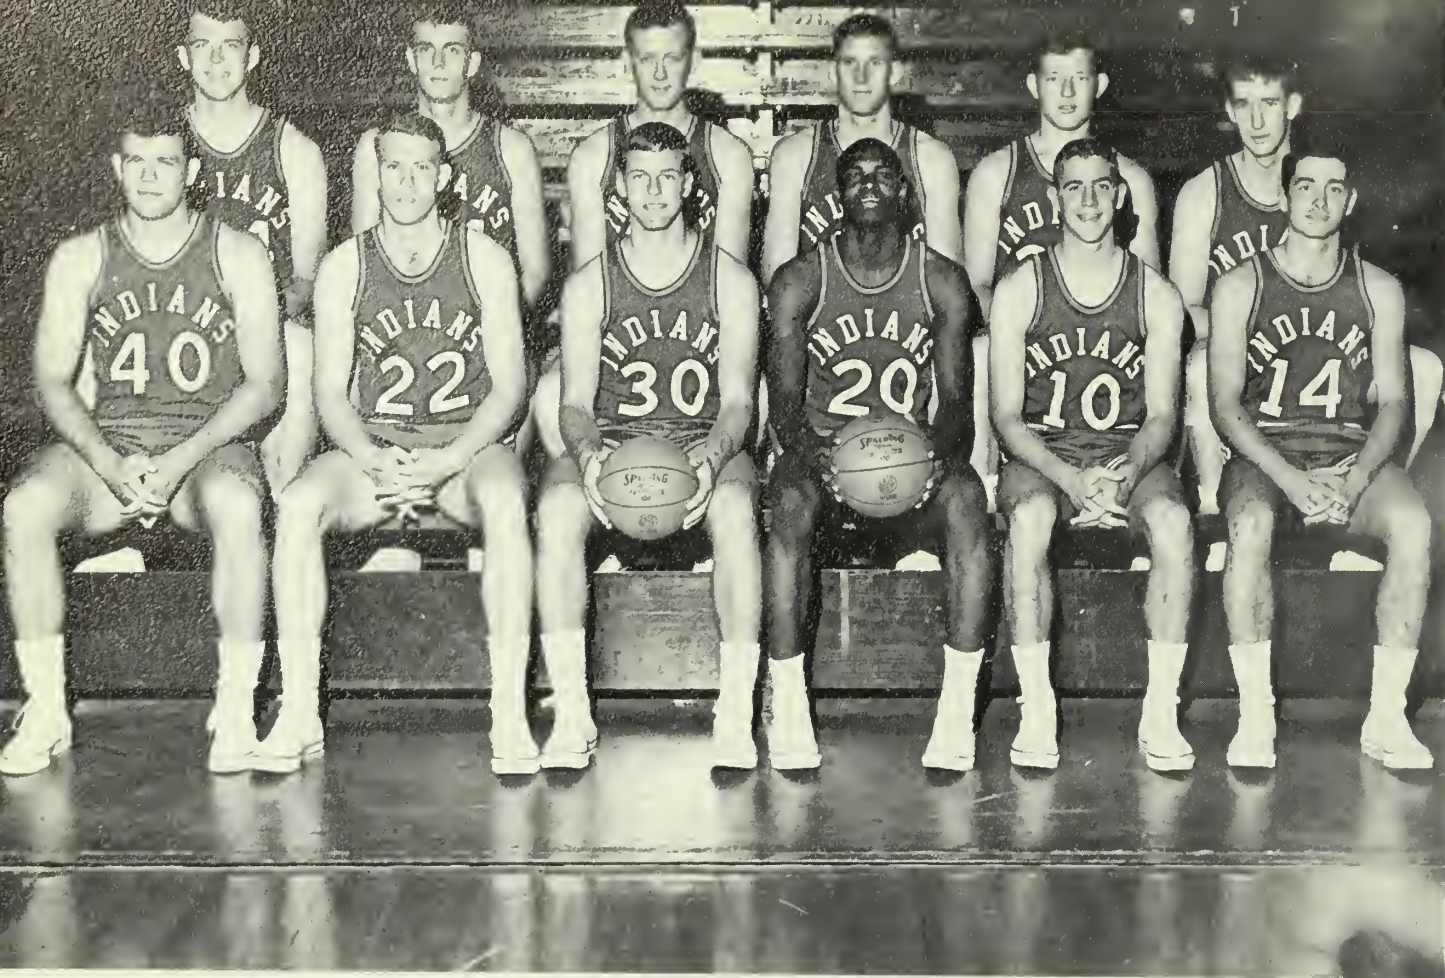

Bob Giersberg, the small but determined captain of the A-State cross country team, reached the plateau of his cross country career as he finished third in the NCAA college division cross country meet during the fall. For his achievements Giersberg was named to the college division All-American team, along with the other top 15 finishers. Giersberg finished the four-mile course at Wheaton, Ill., with a time of 20:01.

1967 SLC Champions

Important team leadership was provided by seniors Harold Scifres and John Dickson, shown here discussing an upcoming game with Coach Marvin Speight.

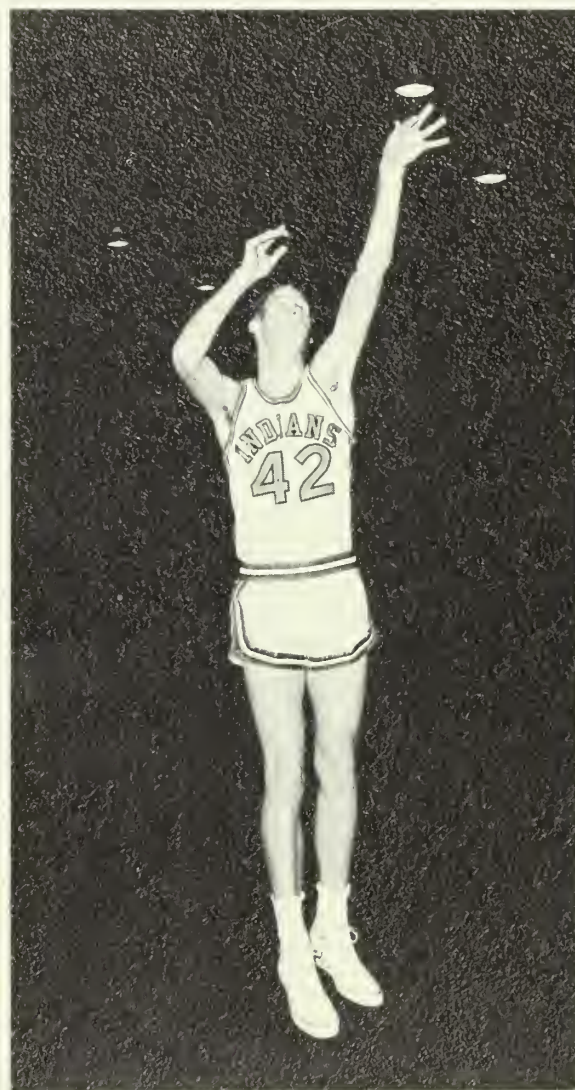

All-SLC Picks

Harold Scifres, "Mr. Outside" of the ASU team, averaged 11.7 points per game as he gained a second unit berth on the star squad. Scifres was outstanding on defense, stopping such SLC gunners as John Godfrey, Terry George and John Lynch.

Dave Velandier transferred from Marquette University and gave the Indians what they had been needing—a "quarterback." Velandier was a crack ball-handler and also a clutch free throw shooter. His efforts gained him an honorable mention spot on the All-SLC team.

Mike Burk teamed with John Dickson to give the Indians the best one-two inside punch in the conference and gained first-team honors. Only a junior, Burk averaged 13.3 points and 7.8 rebounds per game. He was also the team's top inside defensive man.

Dickson hit nearly every shot in the book as he finished second among top career scorers at ASU.

AP, UPI Name Dickson As All-American

John Dickson closed out his illustrious college basketball career by being named to both the Association Press and United Press International All-American squads. The 6-11 senior became the first player in Southland Conference history ever to be named to the All-SLC team for three consecutive years as he averaged 23.5 points and 12.5 rebounds per game in leading the Indians to the school's first undisputed SLC championship. At the end of the season Dickson's name was beside 10 ASU records and nine SLC marks. He won the national field goal percentage crown as he hit a fantastic .695. Among his school records are:

- Most points in one game—47
- Most field goals in one game—19
- Highest field goal percentage—.695
- Most rebounds in season—354
- Most rebounds in one game—23

Red-White Game Initiated

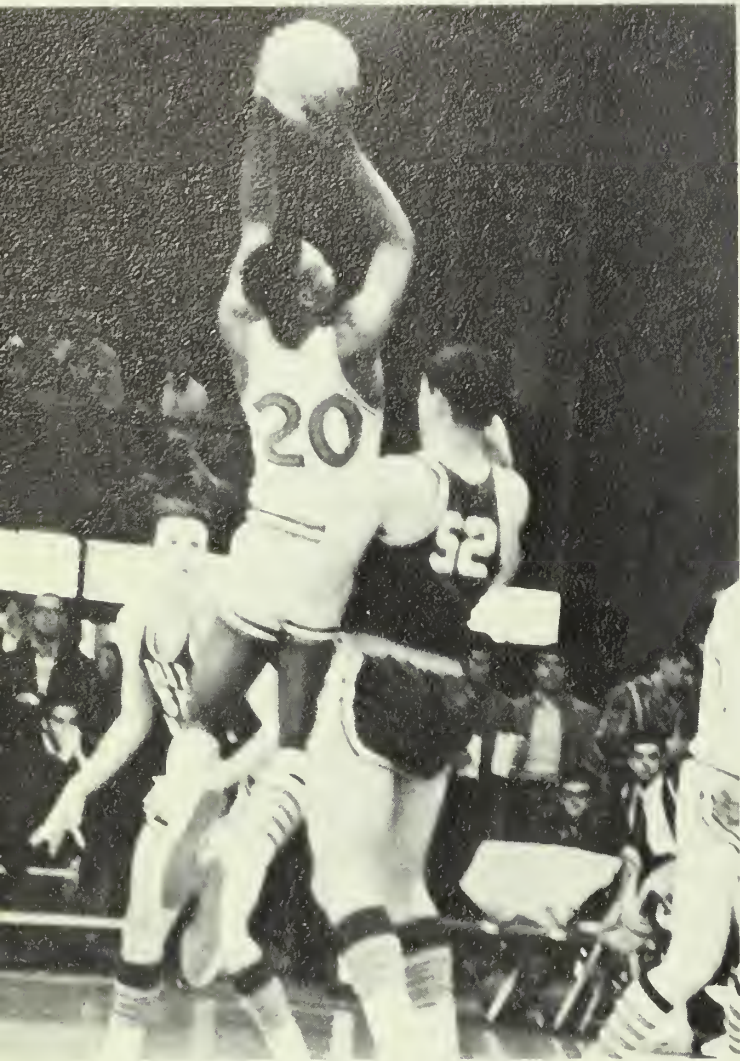

Brother against brother? Not quite, but teammate against teammate. The Red-White game proved so popular that it will be an annual event.

A new twist to Arkansas State University basketball was added this season as the team held its first annual Red-White Intrasquad game. The Red team, captained by senior Harold Scifres, won the contest. The unusual battle gave Indian fans a "sneak preview" of the 1967 team and a chance to personally meet the team members. Prior to the game Coach Marvin Speight, the head basketball mentor explained the Tribe's offenses and defenses to the large crowd present.

Indians Open Cold on Road

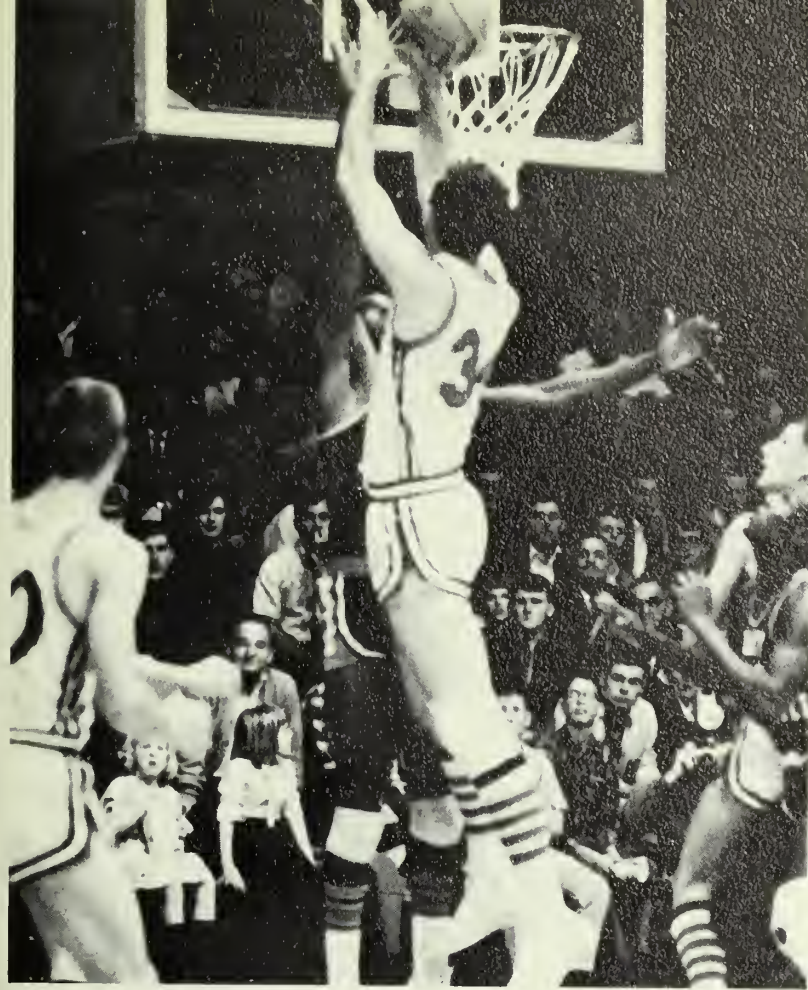

Milton Sullivan, Arkansas State's determined forward, takes a leap in the East Tennessee State University game in an effort to bucket two points for the Indians, who won the tilt 70-64.

The entire year wasn't a bed of roses for the Indians, for they got off to one of their worst starts in recent years. The Tribe lost its first two contests to East Tennessee State University and Tennessee Tech on the road before topping ETSU in a return match at Jonesboro 70-64. Always menacing Southeast Oklahoma invaded Indian country and upset ASU 75-74 in the first game of a two-night stand. The Tribe, outraged by the loss to the Savages, came back the following night and ran the opposition out of the gym as the Osage won 100-63 and topped the century mark for the first time of the season. The Redmen followed the SE Oklahoma contests with an impressive showing against the Phillips Oilers in an exhibition game. The Oilers are made up of former college All-Americans, but they had to come from behind to nip the Indians.

Indian guard Harold Scifres puts the finishing touches on a fine drive.

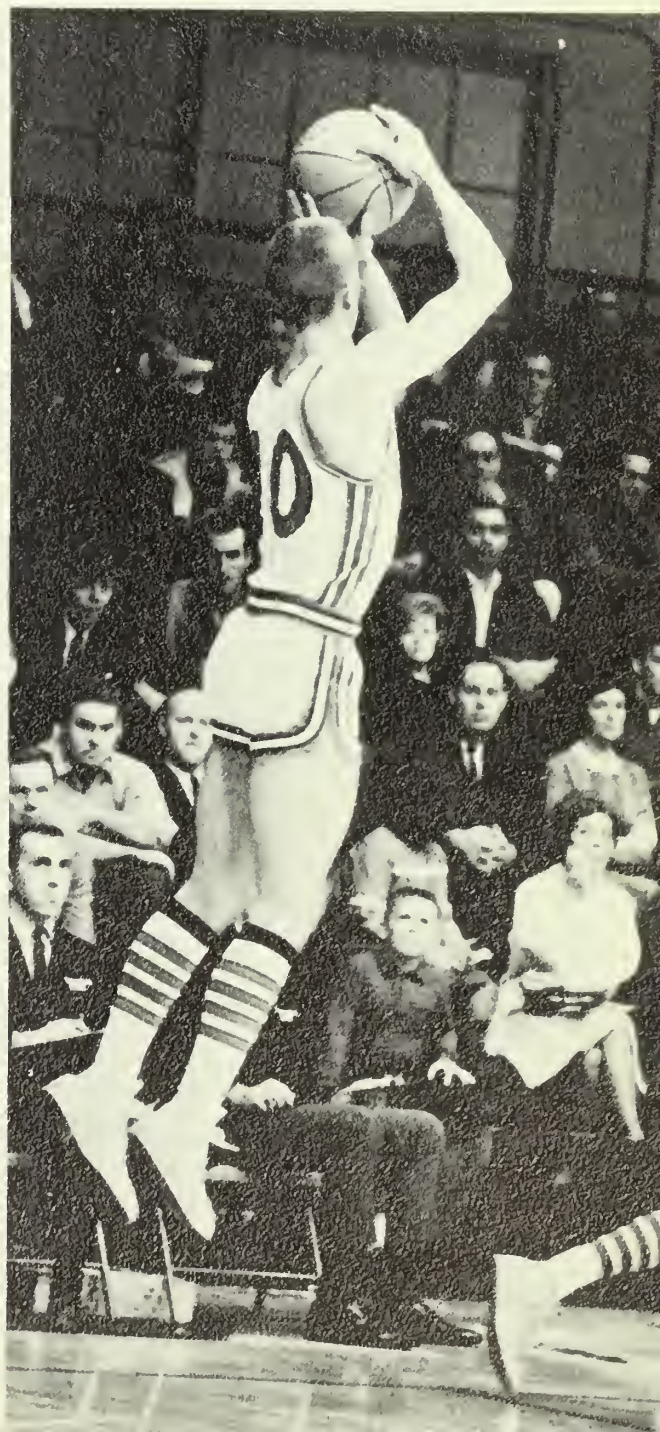

Big John connects on an easy two-pointer in the East Tennessee game.

Indians Top Century Mark

Jim Mueller takes to the air in attempting to add points to the Tribe lead.

Despite the desperate efforts of two Southeast Oklahoma cagers, David Renn managed to let loose this shot.

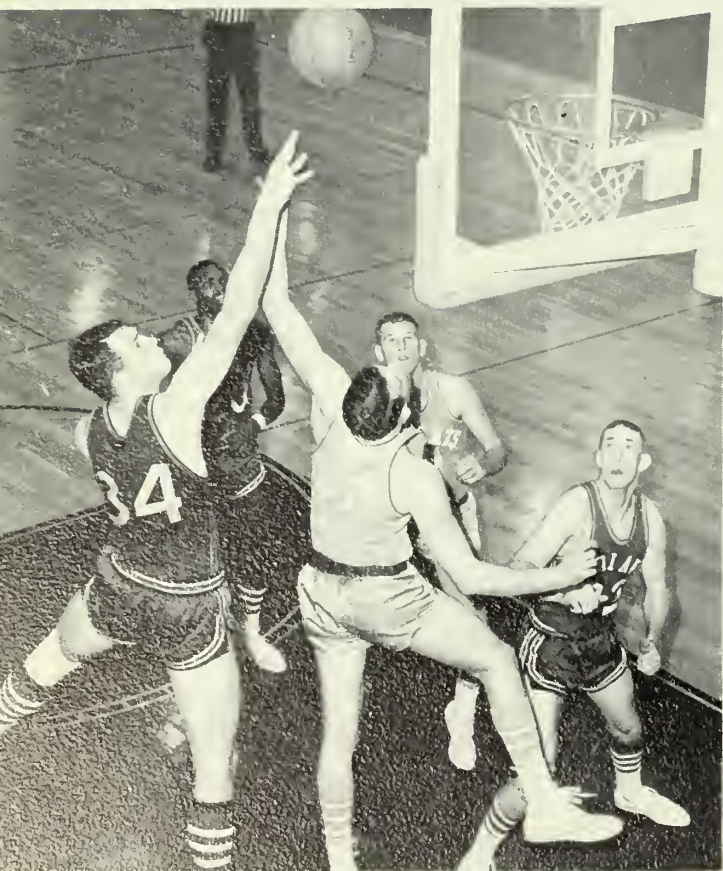

ASU Starts SLC Play With Win

A-State started the SLC loop with a big win over Abilene Christian, 82-80, in overtime. Dave Velander pushed in two free throws with .03 left in the overtime to give the Indians the victory. The loss was ACC's first on its home court in conference play. Mike Burk put the Indians into the overtime period with a last second basket. "Big John" Dickson set a school scoring record as A-State downed Chattanooga 101-87. The 6-11 All-American center scored on 17 of 22 field goal attempts and 13 of 16 free throws for 47 points. In the Rapides Parish Nurses Tournament the Indians defeated NW Louisiana 72-68. Dickson scored five points in the overtime period to put ASU in the finals with Louisiana College, but the Tribe lost to the Wildcats 92-88. A-State again went into overtime, edging out Oglethorpe 82-81. Dickson was again the hero, scoring his 36th point at the buzzer to give ASU the win.

Game strategy was often changed during time out periods like this one as the Indians huddle around Coach Marvin Speight.

This fast break was successful as Dave Velandier hits a short field goal attempt.

Dismay breaks out as an Abilene Christian player slips and "fumbles" the ball. Struggling for the ball for ASU are John Dickson (bent over) and Dave Velandier. David Renn (32) and Harold Scifres watch.

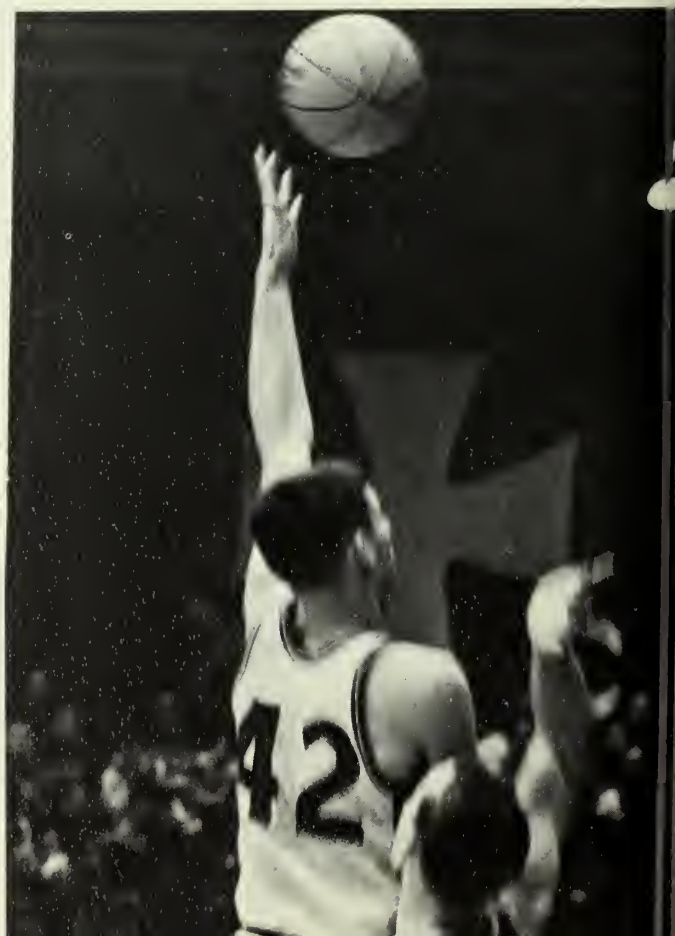

ASU Adds Four Wins To Record

The Indians added four wins to their ever improving record with victories over University of Tennessee Martin Branch, Abilene Christian, Trinity U. and Lamar Tech. The Tribe won 76-67 in a breather against UTMB. During the same home stand the Wildcats of ACC fell to the Indians 76-70. It was their second loss this season to the Indians. The Redmen took first place in the SLC with a close 81-75 win at Trinity University. The Tribe's fourth straight victory in conference play came at home as the Indians ran past Lamar Tech's Cardinals 89-73. The game saw John Dickson, Mike Burk, Harold Scifres, David Renn and Milton Sullivan score in double figures.

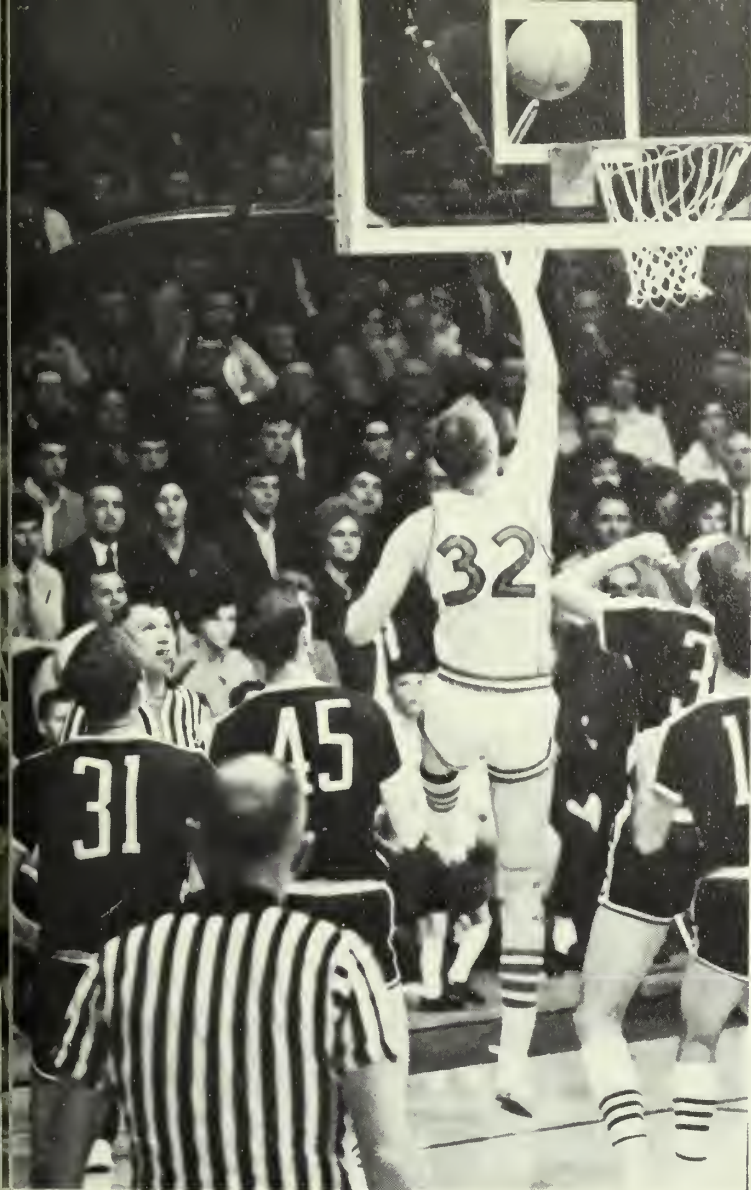

Jim Mueller proves that height is not everything, especially when one can jump high enough to get in the right position as he did in the ACC game.

Conference Foes Fall

David Renn cracks the tough Abilene defense for an easy two points. Although he didn't start a game, Renn averaged 9.7 points.

Harold Persfull, a jumping-jack forward, gave the Tribe bench strength.

Squeezing between two Lamar Tech players, Harold Scifres puts up two points. Harry's drives helped the Indians gain many of their 17 wins.

John Dickson and Southeast Missouri's John Boyd tie up the ball and their arms and legs while fighting for it.

ASU Wraps Up SLC Championship

Dave Renn goes up for two against Arlington State.

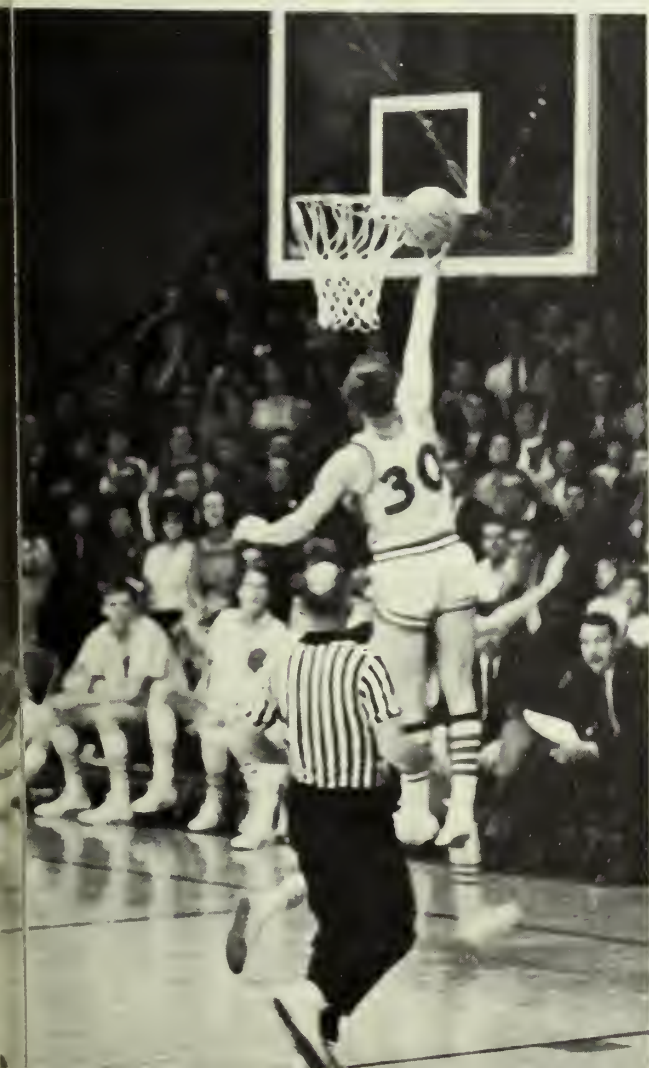

This rebound got away from SeMo as Mike Burk goes high for it.

The Rebels of Arlington just couldn't stop Big John.

Scoring after a Harold Scifres' steal is Dave Velandier.

Victories at Arlington State and Lamar Tech gave Arkansas State University a 6-0 Southland Conference record and sole possession of the 1967 SLC basketball championship. This marked the first conference crown for ASU in any sport. John Dickson wheeled and dealed for a record 47 points in leading ASU past Arlington 99-87. But when Dickson wasn't scoring, Mike Burk was as he racked up 23 points of his own. The Indians beat Lamar Tech on the Cardinals' home court for the first time ever, but they had to come from behind to do it. Dickson was almost completely stopped in the first half, but he came back in the second half and hit seven straight buckets as the Tribe came back from a 10-point deficit to win the game and the championship. Dickson finished with 24 points, and Burk, Dave Renn and Milton Sullivan all hit in double figures. Arkansas State split two games with Southeast Missouri in non-conference tilts. The Redmen topped SeMo 99-85 in Indian Field House but were upset 74-68 at Cape State.

Harold Scifres hits two from outside against SeMo.

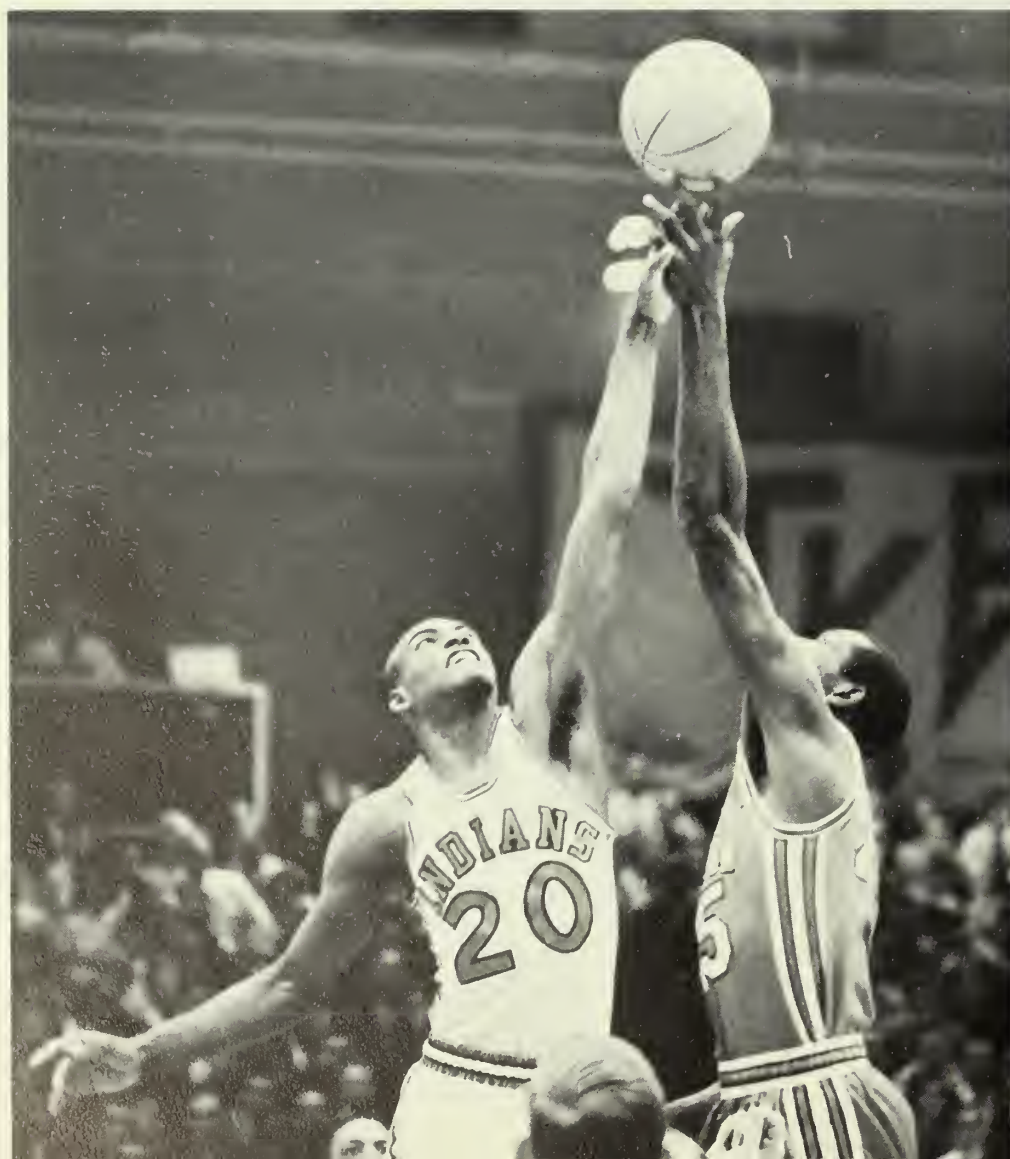

Freshman Milton Sullivan was named to the All-Tourney team, while John Dickson and Mike Burk were given honorable mention.

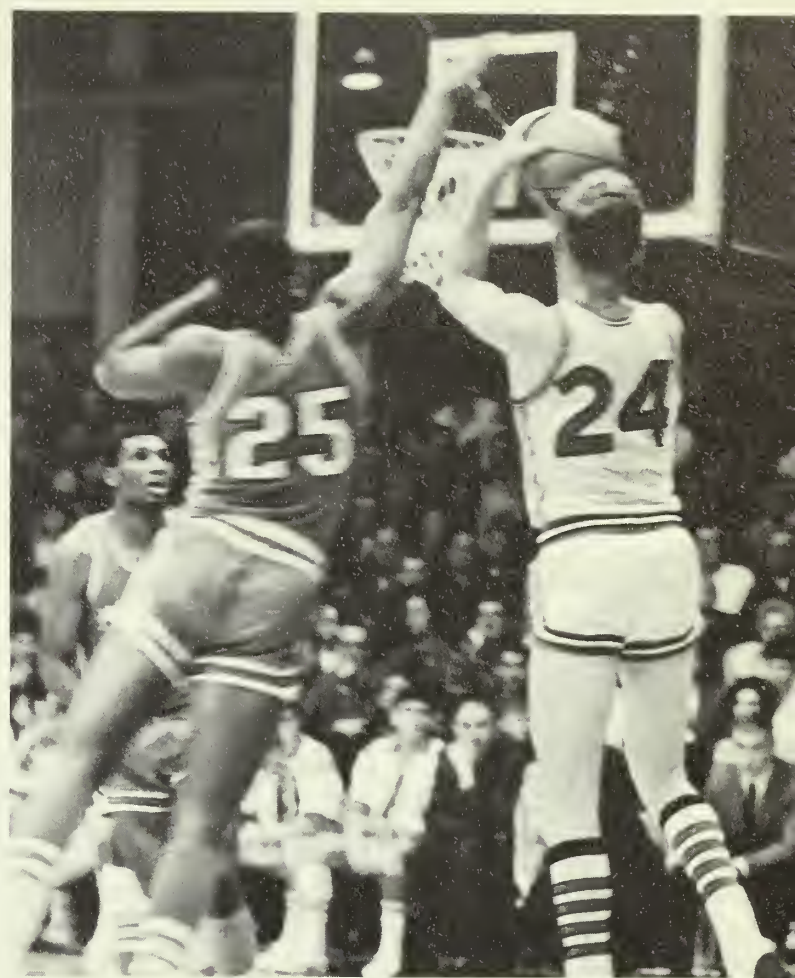

Co-captains Harold Scifres and John Dickson accept the trophy for second place in behalf of the Indian team from Athletic Director J. A. Tomlinson.

Houston 'Dogs' Past A-State

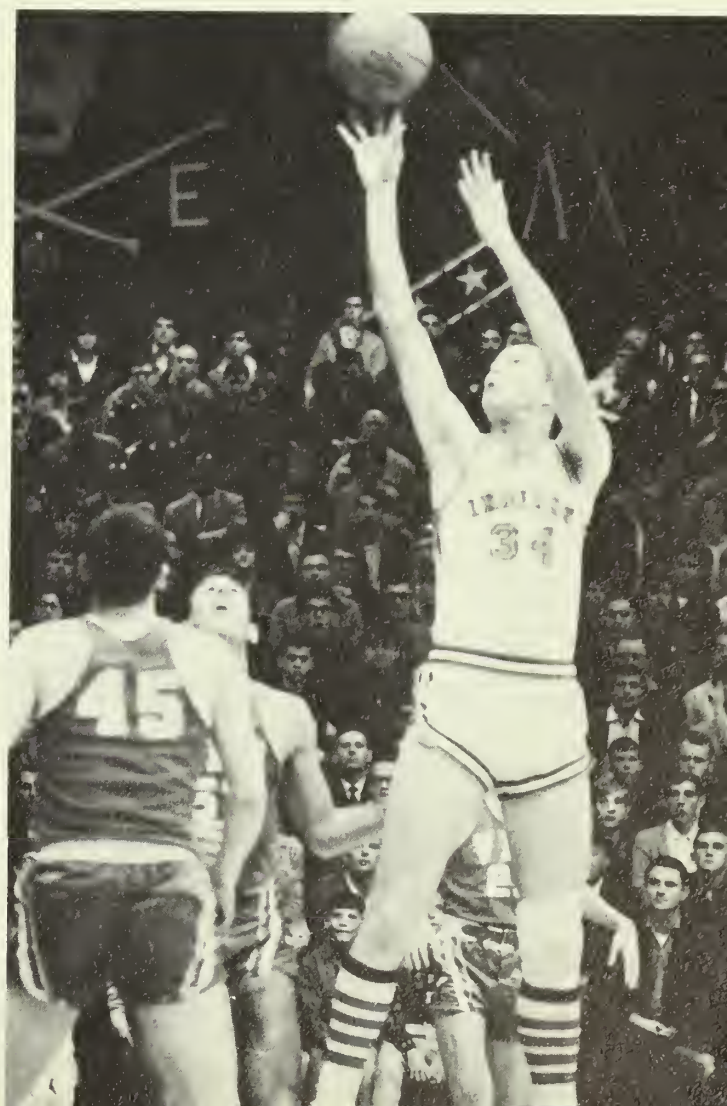

Houston's nationally-ranked Cougars pulled away in the waning moments of play to top A-State's cagers 68-58 in the finals of the annual Holiday Tournament, sponsored by the Indian Club. Contrary to Sports Illustrated's report that Houston "dogged its way past two minor opponents," the Cougars were extended in both their encounters. The Indian defense was especially effective, but unfortunately so was Houston's. Shot after shot was blocked by the tall and talented Cougars. All-American Elvin Hayes, the tourney's most valuable player, led the scoring with 23 points. Dave Renn was high for the Tribe with 16. The Indians whipped VMI in the opening round 81-71, while Houston clipped Kent State 85-73.

At the game's start Indian prospects appeared to be surprisingly good as Sullivan outjumped the vaunted Hayes to get the tip. The Tribe got off to a 5-0 lead.

No matter where the shots were taken from, there was always a big hand in the way.

A little more success in getting their shots off against VMI was evident in the Indians' 81-71 advantage.

Tribe Closes With Two SLC Wins

An Arlington cager sees nothing but a belt line as Milton Sullivan goes up for two.

The Indians closed their regular season play in Indian Field House with smashing performance against Arlington State and Trinity. With the conference already won, the Indians played without pressure and beat both teams with ease. Arlington fell before the Indians 93-77 as A-State ran up a balanced scoring attack. John Dickson led the way with 26 points, while Milton Sullivan had 20. Trinity's Tigers found Indian country just as unfriendly as the Rebels had as ASU won 93-79. Seniors Dickson and Harold Scifres were honored at half-time of the game and played brilliantly both before and after the festivities. Scifres' outside gunning kept the Indians in the lead during the first half, and Dickson hit consistently all night to lead scorers with 22 points. Scifres finished with 18, while Dave Renn had 20 points and Milton Sullivan had 14 to round out ASU scoring.

"Please don't go in," cries Arlington's Mike Nau, but this Gary Crane shot did.

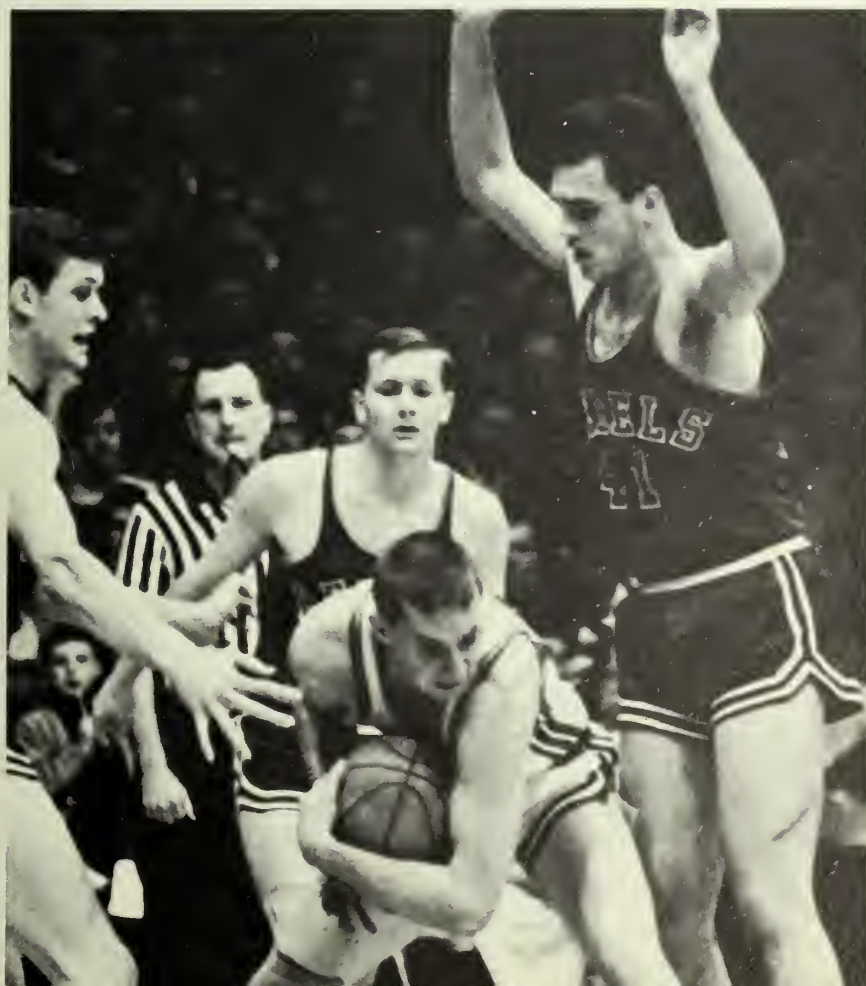

Dickson-Scifres Feted In Finale

Harold Scifres, John Dickson and their parents were honored at halftime.

Dave Renn got this rebound despite the efforts of three Rebel players.

Mike Burk proves his great defensive ability against Arlington State.

ASU Falls To Third In Regionals

SW Missouri Wins On Home Court

Arkansas State ran past Arkansas AM&N in the consolation game of the Southwest Regional basketball tournament 105-93 to take third place in the NCAA sponsored event. Mike Burk hit a career high of 27 points to lead the Indians past the Golden Lions in the season's final battle. Burk got plenty of help as John Dickson, Harold Scifres, David Renn and Gary Crane all scored in double figures to let the Indians finish with their highest point total of the season. In their first contest the Redmen fell to a fast moving Lincoln University team 93-80. Scifres led the Indian scorers with 18 points and went on to All-Tourney honors. The Indians were playing without starters Milton Sullivan and Dave Velander, who were ineligible for the tournament. The event was won by the host team, Southwest Missouri State of Springfield, Mo., and the Bears went on to finish second in the NCAA national tournament.

Mike Burk goes over an Arkansas AM&N player to hook in two points. Burk played the best game of the season as he hit a career high of 27 points to lead Indian scorers.

Scifres is congratulated by SMS's Dan Bolden, who was named top cager in the meet.

Scifres Earns All-Tournament Team Position

Harold Scifres closed out his basketball career at A-State by being named to the All-SW Regional basketball team. Scifres was brilliant against Arkansas AM&N in the consolation game as he scored 18 points.

Track

The man behind ASU's growing track program is John Rose. Coach Rose is aided by graduate assistant Andy Anderson.

Track Program Grows As Major Spring Sport

Arkansas State University is counting heavily on its fine track team to pick up some valuable points toward the Southland Conference All-Sports Trophy. The ASU track program has improved steadily under the guidance of Coach John Rose, and last year the Indians moved up to a third place finish in the SLC meet behind Abilene Christian and Lamar Tech. The Cardinals barely edged the Indians for the second position, and with help from new personnel and continued strong performances from veterans, ASU is strongly regarded as a contestant in the SLC meet in Beaumont this May. Track is a major sport and counts twice as much as any of the other spring sports toward the coveted sweepstakes award. Top returnees include cross country All-American Bob Giersberg and track All-American Jerald Spencer, a high jumper.

David Young, Arkansas' all-time shot put king, gets off a toss in an early season meet.

All-American Jerald Spencer clears 6-8 against Mississippi State. Spencer has set the 7-0 mark for his goal.

Billy Caputo gained All-SLC honors last year as a freshman and has a bright future.

All-SLC Standouts Return

Jeff Lansdale rates among the nation's best javelin throwers and is a two-time All-SLC pick.

Eddie Pruitt is a sure point getter in the long jump and triple jump.

Sprint relay team members are Billy Caputo, Greg Shumaker, Randy Erwin and Eddie Pruitt.

Junior Harry Cline, out for competition for the first time, will give ASU depth in the jumps.

Distance runner Jim Kennedy is a talented freshman.

Veteran Jim Holmes is a quarter-miler and a member of the mile relay team.

Newcomers Counted On

Polevaulter Robert Andrews is a sure point-maker.

Hurdles and sprints are Greg Shumaker's races.

Aiming at a sub-four minute mile is junior Bob Giersberg, who was an All-American in cross country.

Veterans Bolster Success

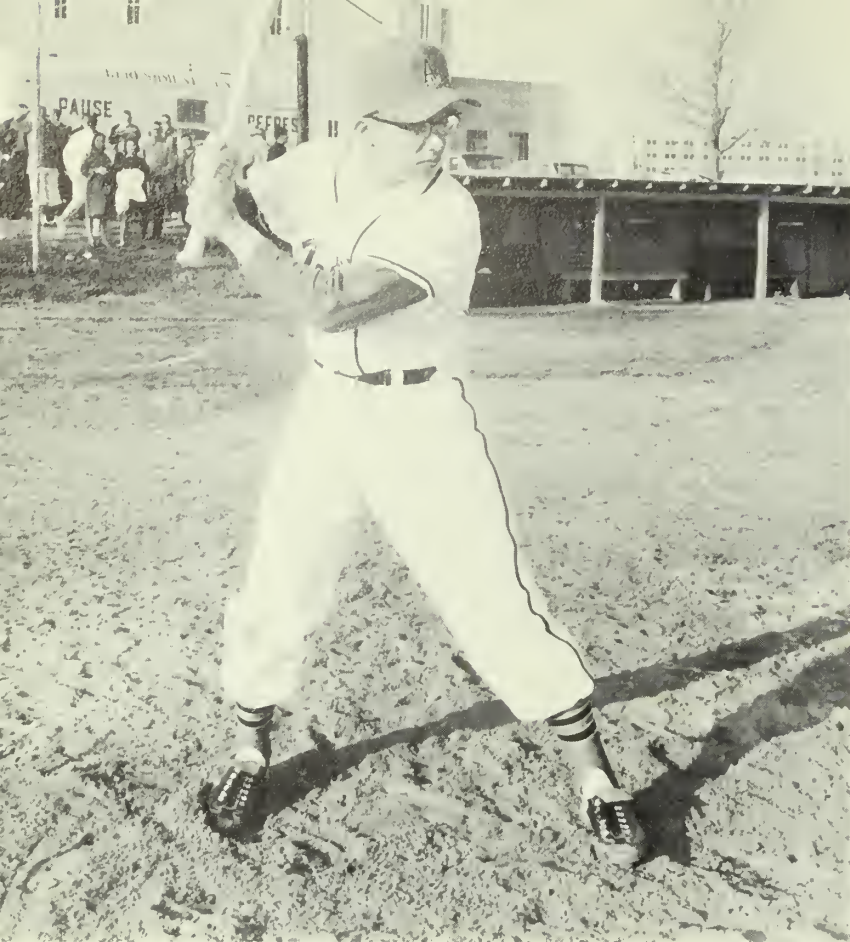

Florida's best school-boy shot man last year was John Snyder, who has a bright future at A-State.

Although the high jump is his main event, Butch Brogden is also a fine javelin man.

Junior Randy Erwin is ASU's top quarter-miler

George Glenn Three- Time All-American

George Glenn Jr. gained All-American honors last year for the third straight year, and he made the highly regarded team at a different position each year. In his final season he made the squad as a center fielder after earning berth at third base and second base the two previous years. Glenn missed much of his final season due to a broken wrist, but he still slugged for a .395 batting average, the third highest in the school's history. Glenn recovered in time for the Southland Conference meet and made the All-SLC first team for the second time. Glenn was a four-year letterman and led the Indians in hitting three of those four years. As a sophomore, he was named the team's most valuable player. Glenn was one of the most colorful players in Indian history. He was an excellent fielder and had good speed. He was daring on the bases and always a power threat.

New Field Under Construction

The weather was cold and the field was under construction, but the game still went on. The playing area was completed before the first game, but workmen were still working on the backstop when the first pitch was thrown.

Kell Field has acquired a new look at A-State. The site of the field was moved at the completion of last season. When spring rolled around only the playing area was completed, but the game must go on, so the Indians played their first few games without a backstop. It didn't seem to bother them, however, because they got off to one of their best starts in recent years. After twelve games, the Tribe already had a 7-4-1 record, well on its way to topping last season's 10-11-1 slate.

Top Returnees Give Indians Bright Future

With several top players returning, the Indians are going for a first place finish in the Southland Conference tournament this spring. All-SLC performers Jimbo Callaway, Bobby Browning and Dick Bethune head the group of returning lettermen. Other top hands are Jim Mueller, last year's leading hitter, Dana Ryan, Jim Burke, John Ford, Jim Green, Phil Floring, Johnny Tipton, Steve Morrison, Ed Hamilton and Fred Wilcox. Several freshmen will be counted on heavily for success.

These three lettermen form A-State's "Terrific Trio" on the infield. They are Jimbo Callaway, Bobby Browning and Dana Ryan.

Indian Moundsmen—(kneeling) Bobby Sherrill, Johnny Tipton, Mike Hickey and Jim Burke; (standing) Ed Hamilton, Dick Bethune, John Ford, Rusty Bourg and Ed Croft. Bourg, Sherrill and Hickey are freshmen, and the others are all lettermen.

Tennis Team Improves

Big things are expected from A-State's improved net team. With returning lettermen Jim Tom Bell, Mike Cargill and Fred Sweatt and top freshman prospect Richard Brooks forming the nucleus of the squad, the Indians may climb to a second or third place finish in the Southland Conference meet at Lamar Tech in May. Brooks was one of Missouri's top high school netters last year and finished second in the state meet. A-State's roughest competition will come from defending champion Trinity University.

Sophomore Fred Sweatt became the first ASU netter to win a match in SLC competition last year in the SLC meet at Arlington.

ASU Netters—(kneeling) Jack Carson, Richard Brooks, Fred Sweatt; (standing) Jim Tom Bell, Elbert Frazier, Mike Cargill and David Foster.

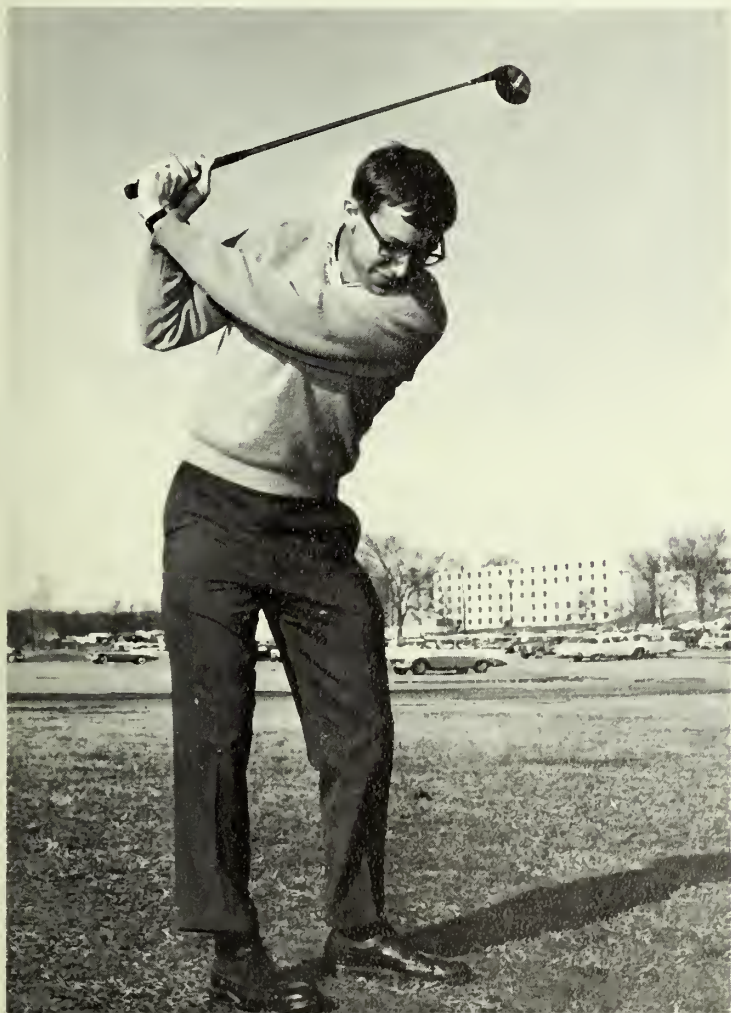

Indian Linksters—Marlin Shipman, Mike Stropp, David Sewell, Jim Heiber, Freddy Lewis, Jerry Bourdage and Mike Mitchell.

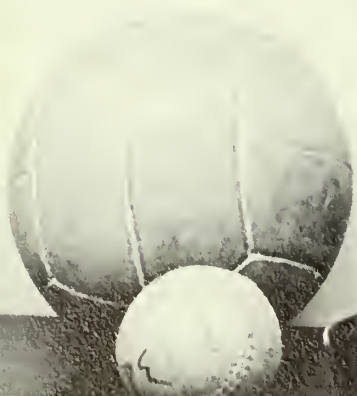

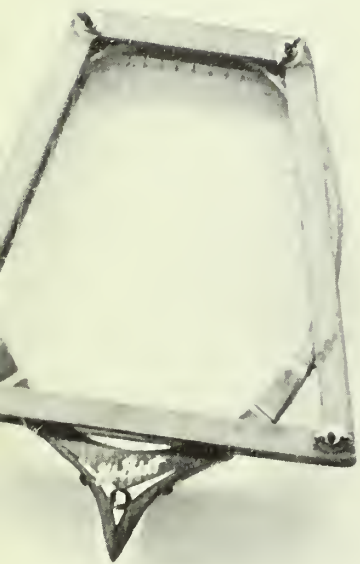

Linksters Plan For Comeback

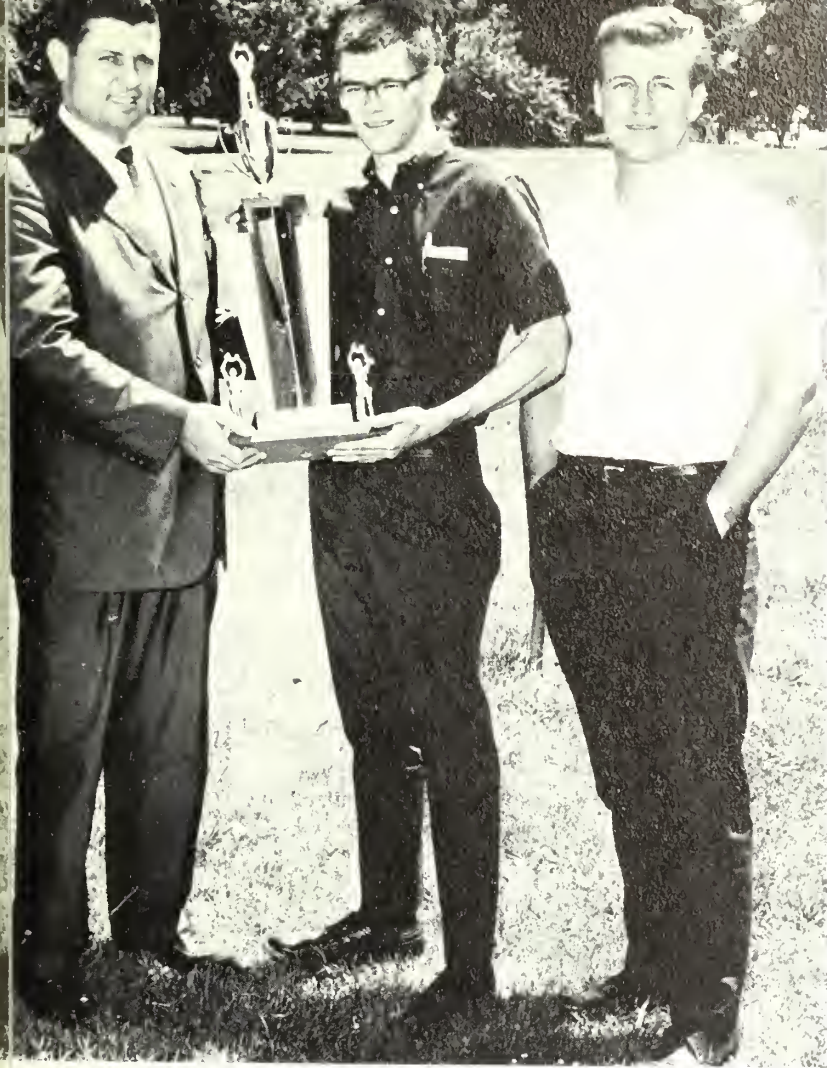

A-State's golfers have plans to regain their second place ranking among SLC golf teams this year. Last year's team fell to a fourth-place finish in the conference meet after finishing second the previous year. Returning lettermen are Freddy Lewis, who has three monograms, Mike Mitchell and Marlin Shipman.

A hole-in-one? Maybe not, but letterman Marlin Shipman will be a top golfer.

Intramurals

Rick Hall, Statemen president, accepts the 1965-66 men's sweepstakes trophy from Coach James Jackson, intramural director, as Gary Lambert, student intramural director, looks on

Jackson, Prescott Direct Intramurals

Heading the women's intramural program is Miss Evelyn Prescott, associate professor of physical education

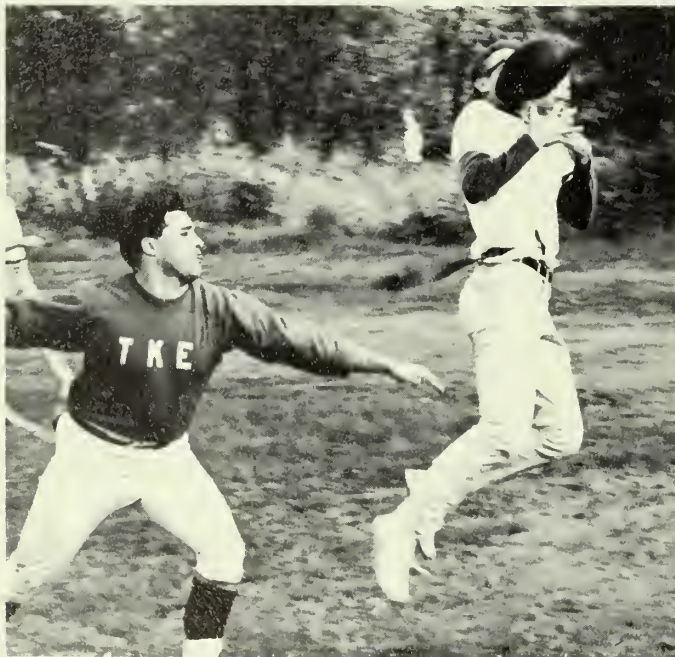

Popular faculty member James Jackson, a former assistant football coach, plans the men's intramural program, which features activities for both independents and Greeks

One team in each league, Lambda Chi Alpha (left) in the Greek League and the Baptist Student Union in the Independent League, went undefeated.

Lambda Chi, BSU Take Respective Flag-Tag Crowns

A staunch pass defense and a well-tuned offense were the keys to victory time after time for the BSU team during regular season action.

Lambda Chi's passing game quickly became the most well-respected in either league because of connections like this.

Believe it or not, tackle was not the name of the game. It only looked that way sometimes.

LXA Cops Playoff

Rolling up a string of 12 straight wins before being upset in post-season action, Lambda Chi Alpha was the outstanding intramural flag-tag team for the second consecutive year. The passing of Jimbo Callaway and the receiving of Dana Ryan and Richard Gaines was too much for the other Greek foes. Sam Tillett's passing was BSU's big weapon. In a post-season playoff between the two championship teams, LXA socked the independents 33-13. Callaway figured in each of the five Lambda Chi touchdowns. An intramural all-star game was also held, with the Greeks winning 14-7. Ryan scored both TD's for the Greeks, one on a pass from Callaway and the other on a pass from Bill Keedy of Sigma Pi. Eddie Pruitt scored for the losers.

Lambda Chi captain Jim Callaway is presented with a trophy after his team won the Statesmen-sponsored playoff game.

Action was fast and furious despite the cold weather when the Greeks and Independents clashed in a post-season all-star contest.

TKE, Statesmen Win Titles

The Statesmen regained the independent crown from the Southeast Missouri Swampers.

Tau Kappa Epsilon and the Statesmen grabbed intramural basketball titles in the usual fast and furious action. In the Greek league Pi Kappa Alpha rolled to an undefeated season but fell to the Tekes in the playoff finals. In the PiKA All-Greek tournament, Lambda Chi Alpha rolled to its fourth consecutive championship, routing the Pikes in the finals 81-60. Alpha Omicron Pi won the women's division with a win over Chi Omega.

Tau Kappa Epsilon was a surprise winner in the Greek league playoffs.

Jo Ann Green and Cindy Hunter, representing Alpha Omicron Pi, accept their trophy for first place in the PiKA tourney from Sam Elardo.

High above the rim soars LXA's Elbert Frazier for an easy two.

Lambda Chi, AOPi Win PiKA Tourney

Lambda Chi Alpha won its fourth straight PiKA trophy.

A large crowd watched the Statesmen win their title contest.

Both Indoor And Outdoor Sports Prove Popular

Sigma Phi Epsilon and Phi Mu took top honors in the annual Sig Ep All-Greek Bowling Tournament.

Cherokee Men's Council won the independent intramural bowling championship and defeated the Sig Ep team in a roll-off.

Robin Hoodettes? Who knows, but these intramural archers don't try shooting apples off people's heads.

Cross country is one of the most grueling intramural sports and the Sigma Phi Epsilon team won the event.

Something For Everyone

These intramural enthusiasts are really in the swim of things as a large crowd watches from the gallery.

Program Features Balance

Arkansas State's intramural program offers something for just about every one who wishes to participate in athletic events. Football, basketball, bowling, softball, volleyball, track and field and swimming are featured among the major intramural sports, while archery, bridge, snooker, cross country, badminton, tennis, table tennis and golf are included in the minor events. The program includes activities for both Greek and independent organizations, but any group of individuals can organize teams and compete. Dormitories often organize teams to help round out independent action.

Volleyball is one of the most popular of the indoor intramural activities for both men and women.

Determination covers the faces of these sprinters as they get ready for the 100-yard dash.

No matter what the weather is outside, A-State's heated pool makes swimming an enjoyable sport the year around.

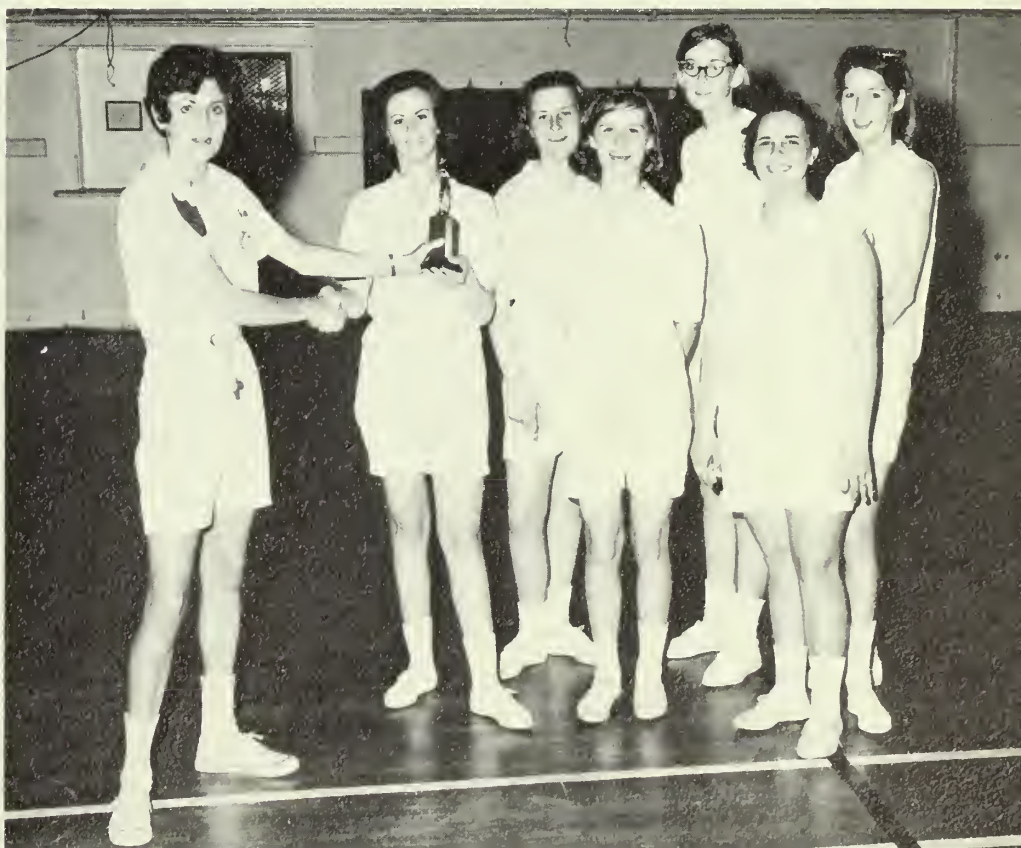

There is much more to volleyball than just knocking the ball back and forth across the net, and the top teams are highly organized

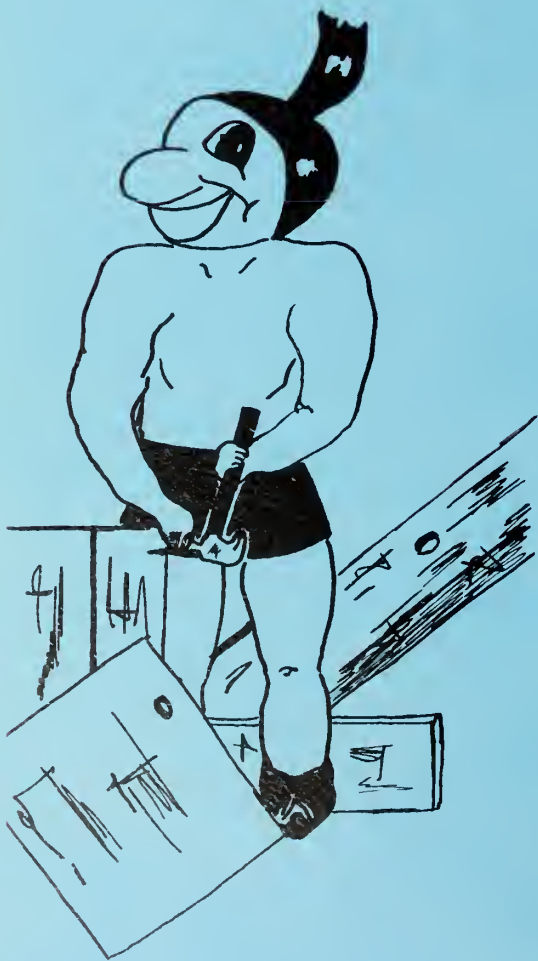

Year-Round Activities Provided

Much of the organization of intramural activities is handled by the students themselves. Intramural directors James Jackson and Miss Evelyn Prescott are assisted by Gary Lambert and Dot Bailey, who coordinate actual play. Physical education majors and minors are used as officials for all major activities, and all are well prepared for their duties. Due to the large number of activities offered, the program must operate smoothly in order to be a success, for some activities overlap each other. Sweepstakes awards are made in Greek and independent leagues.

To the victors go the spoils. In all sports trophies are awarded to the winning teams and points are accumulated for the sweepstakes award.

Trustees Aid In ASU Status

Reng and board members anxiously await word from Senate committee.

Russell E. Owen
Marked Tree

Great pushes forward in the educational realm can not be made by one man alone. He must be supported by a competent group of officials in whose hands much trust and responsibility can be placed. ASU might still be struggling for its newly gained and highly prized status if it were not for the board of trustees, who cajoled many a representative into seeing things their way by taking time out of his own busy schedule and showing those legislators around our ever-expanding campus, filling them in on what A-State has to offer the state as a whole. The board is composed of five members, one of which is appointed each year by the governor and confirmed by the State Senate. Each member serves a five-year term. This year Joe Brooks of Jonesboro succeeds retiring board member, J. H. Smith of Birdeye.

Man In The Know Keeps A-State On The Go

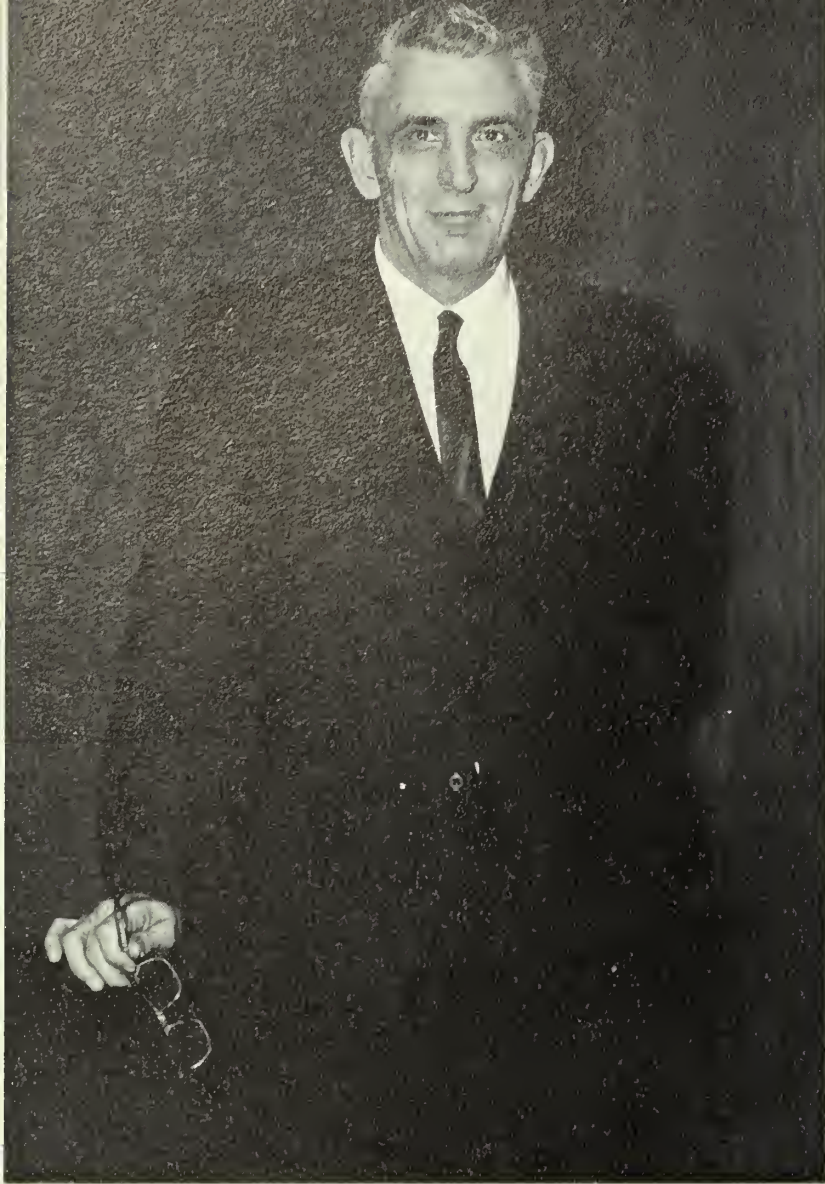

Dr. Carl R. Reng
President of Arkansas State University

Behind Arkansas State's drive toward university status was the president, Dr. Carl R. Reng, whose leadership over the past decade made such a change possible. Dr. Reng labored day and night for months in rallying support for ASU, and the victory was as much his as A-State's. Since he came to the institution in 1951, the building program has experienced fantastic changes. But despite this progress, Dr. Reng is the first to realize that bettering education is a never-ending project.

After a long day, even a president likes to lean back in his chair and relax for a few brief moments.

Behind A Great School Are Administrators

Dr. N. D. Hazelbaker

Since 1953 Dr. N.D. Hazelbaker, formerly of Noel, Mo., has served A-State as Vice President in Charge of Instruction. Previously he was superintendent of several schools in Missouri. After graduating from Northeastern Oklahoma State with a B.S. in mathematics, he completed work on a master's degree in education at the University of Missouri and on a doctorate at the University of Arkansas. He and his wife Mildred have a son, Kim, who is attending A-State.

Mr. L. Cameron

At the head of the monumental financial operations of A-State is the Vice President in Charge of Business and Purchasing, Mr. L. Cameron. A native of Lawrence County, he graduated from A-State in 1936 with a B.S.E. in social science and later obtained a master's at the University of Arkansas. Before returning to A-State in 1951, he taught for two years and served as Lawrence County examiner and later as school supervisor. He and his wife have three children.

Dean Robert Moore

Devotion to duty is one of the requirements of a dean of students, and the duties of Dean Robert Moore pay little attention to the clock. A Mississippian, Dean Moore received a B.A. in psychology at Mississippi College in 1948 and an M.A. at the University of Mississippi. He was dean of men and extension director for five years before taking his present post. He and his wife have two daughters: Mrs. Doris Curtis, a graduate of A-State, and Wanda, a student here presently.

A veteran of 16 years of service with A-State, Mr. Ray H. Hall is director of Field Services. Mr. Hall travels almost continuously in an effort to bring outstanding students to A-State. A native of Fulton County, he received his B.S.E. degree from Arkansas State Teachers in 1951 and his master's from the University of Arkansas. Before coming to A-State, he taught at various schools and also served as superintendent in several districts. He and his wife have three sons.

Reng Center-A Home Away From Home

Now in the third year of its use, the "livingroom" of Arkansas State contains something of interest for every student on campus. Without a doubt, the Reng Center has centralized life on campus more since its opening than any of the other new facilities that have been added in recent years. It is not just a building; it is also an organization and a program. A total of 200 students and employees are necessary to operate the Center each day. Their payroll alone is over a quarter of a million yearly.

J. Ernest Howell, director, sees to it that all phases of Reng Center operation are running smoothly at all times.

Newly appointed assistant director is Jack Henson.

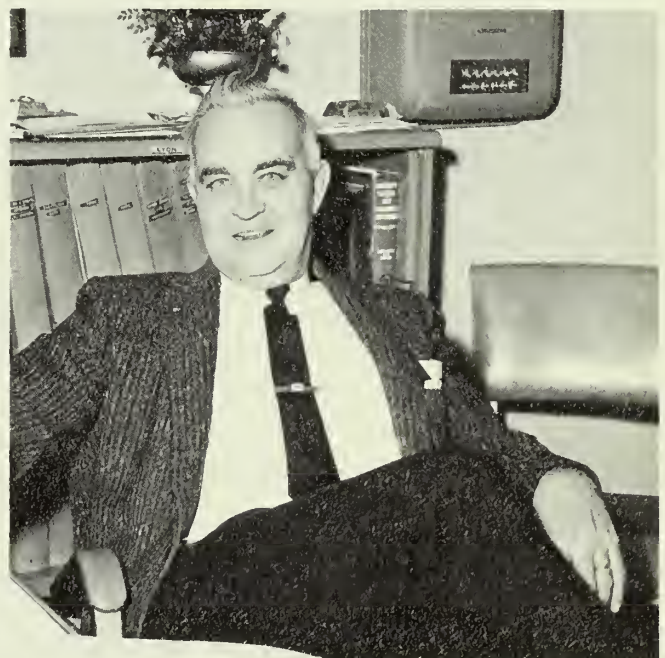

Retired Col. Robert A. Treneman now manages the bookstore.

Under the direction of Mrs. W. W. Nedrow, food served in Woodlands Cafeteria is the best.

Supervising the various recreation facilities in the Center is Phil Pickle.

Janna Kaffka and Norma Garrett double as secretaries to the director.

Ralph Stricklin, head electrician, is in charge of the immense electrical operations in the building.

Cleanup duties are under the capable direction of Garland Cullens and his staff.

School

Among the impressive, interesting schools at Arkansas State is our newly organized School of Agriculture. It is located in one of the most fertile and most diversified farming areas in Arkansas. It has a 12-member faculty, 10 of whom have their doctor's degrees. These well-qualified instructors enable the School of Agriculture to offer majors in agricultural business and economics, agricultural engineering, agricultural education, agronomy, animal husbandry, horticulture and general agriculture. Since the school is equipped with the proper buildings, livestock, machinery and farming land, agricultural students receive on-the-job training. The field of agriculture needs more people to fill the large number of waiting jobs.

Organizing and planning schedules is only part of the work for Dr. O. P. Nail, dean of the School of Agriculture.

Future agricultural leaders receive training in their chosen major.

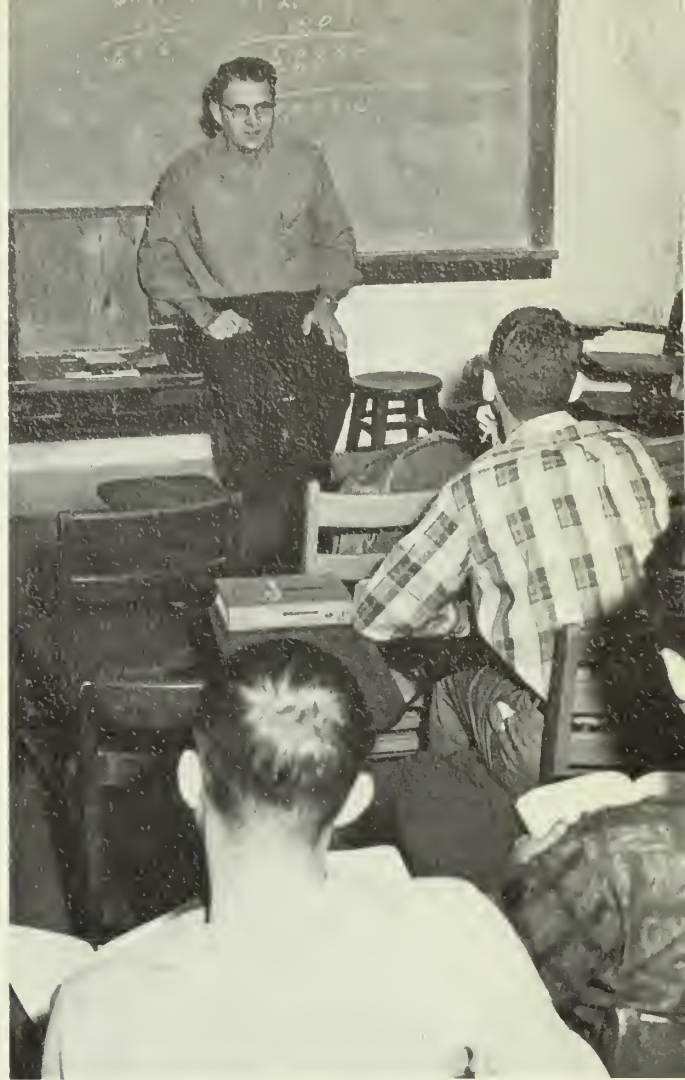

Excellent teachers and equipment provide students with good learning facilities at Arkansas State.

These leaders from the School will have backgrounds in the fields of accounting, business administration, business education and secretarial science. Headed by Dr. B.C. McGough, the school is now offering an even better quality of instruction because of a larger faculty and more classrooms with modern equipment. This year's 120 graduates will go on to become the thinkers, organizers and executives whose skill is vital to our economy. Division heads are Shirl Strauser, Accounting; Dr. Robert Ferralasco, Business and Secretarial Science; and Dr. Roland Mullins, General Business and Economics.

Science waits for no man in its quest for progress, and A-State's School of Science, led by 38 skilled instructors, is no exception. This year, the more than 4,000 students, connected with the department were offered graduate courses in chemistry and a program leading to a B.S. degree and a major in geology, as well as courses in engineering, dentistry, medicine, nursing, pharmacy and medical technology. Also newly instituted are an M.S. degree in biological science and an M.S.E. degree in chemistry. The school added the Medical Arts Club to its clubs. Serving as dean of the school is Dr. James H. Emphasis placed on learning through experience is L. W. "Tex" Plunkett's formula as chairman of the Radio-TV, Journalism and Printing Division. Future journalists use vital techniques of writing and editing while compiling copy for their publication, the Herald, which appears weekly. An invaluable training program is provided for radio students by KASU—FM radio station. Broadcasting with a power of 3,500 watts, KASU is located in the newly-constructed Radio-Television Building, which houses the television control room and studios also. Journalism students may also gain invaluable publication experience working with the A-State yearbook, the Indian. In the printing department students publish the Herald and print all items needed by the School. Extra-curricular activities include the Press Club, Graphic Arts Club and Broadcasters Club. With these facilities the Division continues to move forward in preparing its students for careers in the field of communications.

Division Of Military Science

Under the direction of Colonel Morris and his experienced staff of commissioned and noncommissioned officers, the Division of Military Science emphasizes the fundamentals and opportunities of the Army. The department strives to acquaint students with the role of the present day Army and the history of the Army, to train them in basic military tactics and to prepare the specially selected students for positions in the Army after graduation. Each cadet is assigned to one of 12 companies, each consisting of four platoons and commanded by a cadet captain. Advanced military science students get training in complex drill maneuvers and the more specialized field of aeronautics.

For those who excell in their training, the Division of Military Science is always ready with rewards and honors of some type.

Graduate School

Two additional degrees, the Master of Arts in Chemistry and the Master of Science in History, were added to the Graduate School in the fall of 1966. The school, beginning in 1955 with 16 students, has increased to the present enrollment of 280, while 1,400 students are in the active file. Even more expansion in graduate studies is expected in the near future. The Graduate School, headed by Dr. W. W. Nedrow, enables these students to expand knowledge and skills in the primary areas of their interests by an in-service program. It offers work toward post-graduate degrees by giving students further dimensions in their major fields, helping them in their specialization and giving to them opportunities for further advancement of their knowledge.

After All, Why Did

The days often get long for A-State students as must be the case for any aspiring in the various fields of scholastic endeavor. When it's time to relax, though, there are plenty of places to go to let off steam or just to enjoy some peace and quiet. That's the funny thing about going to college: like a diamond leisure time is rare, and for that reason much more valuable.

Success in sports depends at least partly on an enthusiastic student body, and students like winners.

You Come to School?

If Not to Get an Education. . .

"Gunsmoke" holds back the surging mid-afternoon traffic to allow the damsels to continue their mad rush to the lunch line

One thing's certain about cafeteria food: it's always soup and sandwiches on Sunday night, quite a welcome back to the early-returning suitcases.

Students enjoy the luxurious surroundings of a lounge in the Reng Center, and hey, what's that guy doing with his shirt tail out?

University Climbs Skyward

University status only means increased efforts in construction to meet increased enrollment. Arkansas State's building plans have been well laid in that direction.

Yearbook Staff Completes Job

Editor Roy Ockert and Adviser Tom Manning cut up before the meeting.

Each year the Indian staff starts off with a bigger number, and just as often the editor finds himself wondering what happened to the other 65 members of the staff. Few people realize how much work goes into a book of this size until they join the staff. Then suddenly they start looking for other ways to get their picture in the annual. Room 209 is no place for loafers.

Meeting starts; editor gets serious; 67 staff members watch attentively; they're in the wrong room.

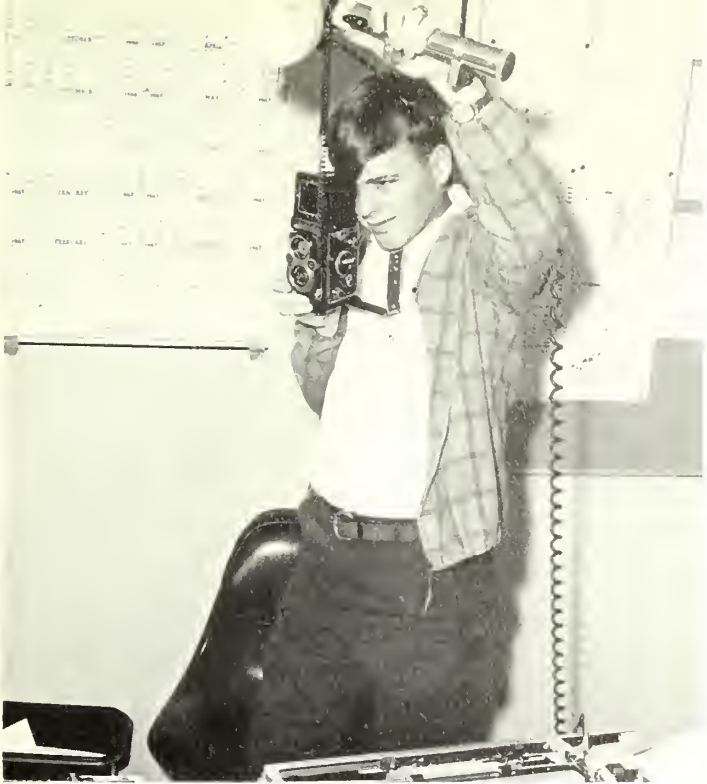

For those who stick around and work, there are a few rewards, small but memorable.

Layout editor was a legacy, Lynn Valenteen, sister of former layout editor.

Fun and games before meeting starts. Editor said only 20 would do any work. Later he wished that many had worked.

Head photographer this year was Marion Meredith, while only a sophomore

Associate editor in charge of sports was Dan Stracner, who steps up to editor next year.

Assistant editor was Dianne Gage, only a sophomore.

Copy editor Pat Montgomery did her job well and collected plenty of jewelry, too.

Assistant photographers for the 1967 Indian were Dale Butler, Gary Langston and Keith Ashcraft.

Photo editor was Karen Salley, who had charge of the Indian files.

Class sections were under the direction of Nancy Kemp, class editor.

Helping prepare the sports section were Danny Henderson, Harry Moore and Ron Becker.

Tim Elliott served as assistant layout editor.

Long line of A-State students await patiently to get inside the Tepee and pick up their copy of the yearbook.

Copy staff members included Victor Dickson and Vic Hosman (standing), Silvey Jones, Marilyn Royal and Beth Daniels (seated).

Cover and artwork on the division pages were completed by art editors Brenda Merrick and Ronnie Lace.

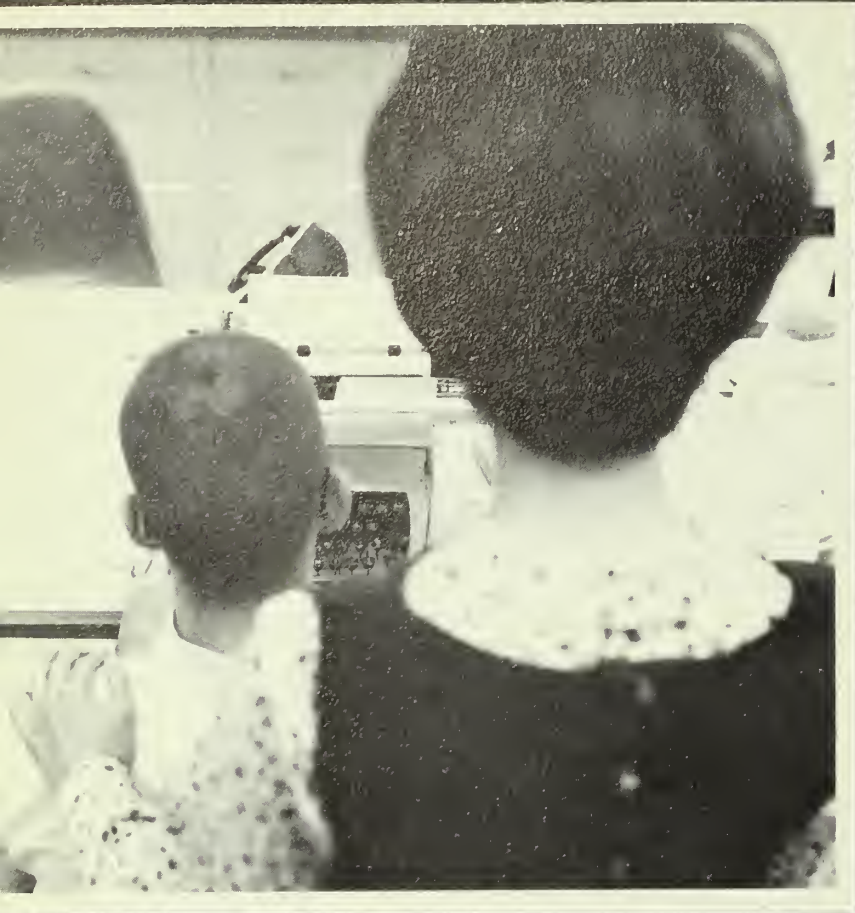

Boxes start to fill up as pages are completed.

Much of the work on the class section was done by Jill Parsons, Carolyn Southard, Harriette Harris (seated), Jennifer Hildreth, Renie Mallory and Roberta Ray (standing).

When the pressure mounted, there was always a calm hand on my shoulder.

Entertainment for happy editor was provided by several staff members, who built a "throne" and added princesses.

Yours Truly. . . The Editor

It's been a long year, and this is one editor who is really ready to sign his initials to the last page. There have been times when I never thought we'd get this far, but we've almost made it now. The preceding 335 pages have been the result of an organized student effort, and happily not the product of two or three people's work. Unfortunately, it is not the result of as many people's work as I had hoped. During the year we seemed to have lost about 45 members of our staff, and often the burden was dumped on the shoulders of the editors, who were supposed to be organizing. That's only human nature, though, and one way to lose faith in your fellow man is to become a yearbook editor. We were plagued by a number of other problems, too, including senioritis, spring fever in the midst of winter, lack of cooperation, etc., but that was the main thing. If the 1967 Indian were a product of more students, it might be better. As it is, though, we're proud of it and proud that it can now be placed on the shelves. As for the individuals, my basis for evaluating their efforts is consistency. We had plenty of talent, but some of it was not directed toward our goal as often as it should have been. Nevertheless, we made it—with some strong moral and physical support from our adviser, Tom Manning. My associate editor was Dan Stracner, who will become editor next year (poor guy). He was in charge of sports and did a creditable job with a big boost from Harry Moore. Dianne Gage did a tremendous job as assistant editor, especially with her humor, which kept me in an unusually good mood most of the year. Lynn Valenteen did a remarkable job as layout editor considering that her staff quit on her. Although I will certainly be accused of prejudice, I think the most consistent worker was Pat, my copy editor, a source of both inspiration and distraction for yours truly. The photographers were the best group we've had since I've been here although sometimes they forgot that they were supposed to print pictures, too. There were others too numerous to mention in this space. I hope they don't mind being overlooked by a tired double editor, who is ready for a new life.
